FULTON PLANNING TO CUT TAX RATE FOR COMING YEAR

County Commissioners Expect To Set Levy at 10 Mills.

Fulton county commissioners yesterday made plans to cut the county tax rate in 1939 to 10 mills—the same rate which was in force in 1937. The rate was raised to 12.5 mills for 1938 to meet extraordinary demands, but the group yesterday was unanimous in expressing a desire to return to the old 10-mill rate in 1939.

James L. Respass, county auditor, was instructed to prepare a budget at once, calling for a 10-mill levy and to file recommendations for balancing county income with county appropriations for the year.

The action was taken at a meeting of commissioners to put finishing touches on the $2,500,000 bond issue proposal, the county's share of the program calling for expenditure of approximately $15,000,000 in the city and county for 1939.

A 14-member bond commission was appointed and two tentative changes authorized in county bond issue amounts. Both are subject to approval by the co-ordinating committee of citizens.

One of the changes proposes to increase the bond issue $50,000 to provide $100,000 for the county for an armory, making a total of $2,550,000. The other would divert $200,000 from the $1,500,000 set up for street, bridge, highway, viaduct and other road work within and without the city for additional sewers.

Final action on the amounts and setting November 2 as the date for the election is scheduled to take place this morning.

George F. Longino, chairman of the public works committee of the commission, brought the proposed new budgetary proposition to the board, asserting it should begin now to take steps to reduce the tax rate and to trim activities to fit the budget.

"If we do not do so, and have to place a drastically reduced budget into effect the first of the year, we will not have had time to study it out," he said. "I think we should have a budget prepared as soon as possible which contemplates a 10-mill tax levy for 1939."

Other commissioners agreed and Respass said he would begin work on it at once.

Members of the county bond commission, named yesterday, are: Dr. T. M. Ezzard, Roswell; Carl Milner, Gate City Cotton Mill, East Point; Professor J. T. McGee, 310 Thompson street; Ryburn Clay, Fulton National Bank; Frank Neely, Rich's, Inc.; Eugene King, Hapeville; H. B. Bishop, Fairburn; J. H. Dooley, Chattahoochee; R. O. Adams, Lakewood avenue; Dr. A. C. Ayers, 772 Peoples street; J. A. Harper, 836 Boulevard, S. E.; Hughes Spalding, 2002 Peachtree road, N. W.; J. A. Aldredge, 1588 Linda way, S. W., and Robert Strickland, Trust Company of Georgia.

Meanwhile, Mayor Hartsfield urged city officials to get applications to PWA ready for submission this week, before the deadline for acceptance. School officials yesterday prepared an application for the proposed new Morningside Junior High school, total cost of which would be $450,000.

Lawrence James, assistant city comptroller, signed the application for a $202,500 federal grant, which would be matched by $247,500 in city bond funds.

Applications Not Filed.
Applications on projects for Grady hospital, Battle Hill, several school projects, for a new armory and a new fire headquarters are yet to be filed.

Commissioner Troy Chastain told commissioners he was "disappointed" that social benefits offered by the state and federal governments had not reduced county obligations in that respect.

"I think we should look more to the state for relief from these costs and demand our share of money for these purposes," he added.

"The state should provide for those who formerly were subjects for almshouses and juvenile homes."

"If you are making a fight on my department," Commissioner Ed L. Almand, chairman of the aims and juvenile committee, asserted, "just say so. We are doing the best we can under the circumstances."

"Don't misunderstand me," Chastain replied. "I do not mean that you are not doing all you can, but it seems to me that we should be getting some relief from demands which are being made on us for all these social benefits."

The commissioners voted to provide $200 a month transportation costs for 18 public health nurses, offered to the county free by WPA.

A letter from Hugh W. Roberts, executive secretary of the Associated General Contractors of America, calling on Secretary Ickes to keep PWA lists open until after Atlanta and Fulton county vote on bonds was referred to the citizens' co-ordinating committee for study.

RAINS EXPECTED TO END DROUTH

Local Showers and Warmer Predicted for Today.

It's possible Atlanta's month-long drouth may be ended today, Meteorologist George W. Mindling said yesterday. He predicted probable local showers and warmer weather, with the thermometer expected to range between 60 and 88 degrees. Yesterday's high was 77.

Not enough rain has fallen since September 14 to measure, the weatherman said, and only two-tenths of an inch have fallen since August 28, making the period one of the driest in the city's history. He looks for further showers towards the end of the week, and normal temperatures.

Fort Mac Band Transfer Stayed

Orders to transfer the Twenty-second Infantry band from Fort McPherson to Fort McClelland at Anniston, Ala., have been "temporarily suspended" by the War Department at the request of Congressman Robert Ramspeck, it was learned last night.

Secretary of War Harry Woodring, replying to a telegram of protest from the congressman, said that the band will not be moved "pending a final decision." Officers at McPherson recently revealed that the band was to be sent to Anniston, where a part of the Twenty-second Infantry has already been transferred.

New York Police Official Lauds City's Method of Handling Traffic

Inspector Mathew A. Skea, in Brief Visit, Says Education of Public Necessary; Praises Malcolm's Bicycle Patrol.

By WALLACE MINSHULL.

Atlanta has one of the most efficient methods of handling traffic of any city of its size in the country and a traffic record that could well be the envy of any metropolitan area, whether larger or smaller.

This is the opinion of Inspector Mathew A. Skea, of the New York police traffic department, who paid a brief visit to the Atlanta police department late yesterday afternoon while en route from Los Angeles to New York.

Inspector Skea, who had been attending the annual national convention of the American Legion on the Pacific coast, told officials of the Atlanta traffic bureau that, while he had had only a limited time in which to study the traffic situation here, he was favorably

60-Day Truce.

Under the railway labor act, the commission will have 30 days to complete its investigation and the carriers and the unions will have 30 days thereafter to consider its recommendations. During that 60-day period neither side can disturb the status quo of their relations. Thus, should Mr. Roosevelt set up the commission between now and October 1, the railroads could not put the lower wage scale into effect and the workers could not leave their duties during the ensuing 60 days. This would forestall a showdown until after December 1.

The President can select as many commissioners as he deems desirable. The law stipulates only that they must have no pecuniary or other interest in the railroads or brotherhoods. The commission's recommendations would not bind either party but, presumably, would attract the support of public opinion.

Some railroad spokesmen have indicated that if a strike materialized they would not attempt to fight it, but would suspend operations.

Leaders of the brotherhoods ordered a nation-wide strike ballot after efforts to mediate the controversy collapsed on August 31. The National Mediation Board, which had been trying to reach a settlement since August 11, suggested arbitration.

SENATORS STUDY TALMADGE PLEA

Probers Withhold Action on Charges Until Their Authority Is Established.

Tift committee, said no contest had been filed in that county, although it appeared in a list of 33 released by Talmadge. However, the Lamar county (Barnesville) committee announced it would meet tomorrow to study a Talmadge contest and this county was not in the original list.

F. B. Derrick, chairman of the Rabun county committee, said he had conferred with Talmadge concerning the contest there and the former governor had agreed to withdraw it.

The day's developments thus apparently left only five counties still to act on the contests filed by Talmadge in an effort to upset the renomination of Senator George in the September 14 voting. They were Ben Hill, Evans, Lamar, Liberty and Schley.

Losses by Default. Nearly all of the decisions against Talmadge went by default today, since the contestant was not present or represented by counsel. Included in those acting today were two counties which were in Lawrence Camp's column—Rockdale and Polk. All others contested were won by George.

Committeemen in Hancock and Bryan counties followed Coweta's example in voting to bill Talmadge for the expense of the special sessions, the former deciding it cost $111 and the latter fixing it at $27 as the charge. This added to Coweta's demand for $76.50 to make a total of $214.50 sought. Talmadge has made no comment on these bills, but has said he would carry his contests to the Macon convention, October 5.

Secretary of State Wilson announced all candidates wishing a place on the general election ballot must notify him by October 6.

ASSERTS CONTESTS ARE ILL ADVISED

A. H. McBryde, member of the Polk county committee from Aragon district, made the motion to disallow the petition for lack of sustaining evidence. He declared: "I am a loyal Talmadge supporter and have been one for many years, but I am convinced that his contest in Polk county was ill advised and without any grounds to justify it."

Rayle ranked fourth in scholastic honors and received a medal as the highest-ranking athlete in his class. He was chosen as the most representative and the most intellectual member of his class and was awarded a cup as the best all-around student.

He was a member of the student government council in 1938 and of the Tattler editorial staff in his junior year. His military record included participation in R. O. T. C. activities during 1936-1937, and he was a member of the football and track teams. He was awarded a gold "B" for his honor standing.

TEXT OF HITLER'S DECLARATION THAT HE WILL NOT WAIT

Patience at an End After 20 Years Of Watching Suffering, He Cries

BERLIN Sept. 26.—(AP)—The text of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's address today on the international situation follows:

On February 22 I made before the reichstag a declaration of my attitude toward the international situation. I said that I would not wait for the day when the world would be ready to accept the German people.

The nation heard it and understood what I meant. One statesman (meaning former Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of the then independent Austria) failed to understand—he has been removed, and my promise of that time has been fulfilled.

(Hitler said he spoke February 22, but apparently meant February 20. On that date, he called for return of German minorities in other countries and colonies lost in the World War. Of Austria, which he was to take over March 13, he said merely that an "appeasement" with her had been achieved.)

For the second time, I spoke on this same demand before the reich's party convention in Nuremberg and again the nation heard.

Today I once more stand before you speaking to the people itself as in the days of our struggles, and you know what that means.

Today there must remain no vestige of doubt in the world—today it is not a Fuehrer or a man who speaks, but the whole German people.

And if I am now spokesman of this German people, I know at this hour that all the listening millions of this people are at one, that they endorse these words and make them their own testimony.

Let other statesmen search themselves and see if it is the same with them.

The question which has been agitating us most deeply for the past months and weeks is well known to them.

HATRED IS CENTERED ON CZECH PRESIDENT

Its name is not so much Czechoslovakia; its name is rather Herr Benes (Eduard Benes, president of Czechoslovakia).

This name unites all that is agitating millions today, what either drives them to despair or fills them with fanatic determination.

How came this question to reach such importance?

I will here briefly repeat, as I have done before, the essence and purposes of Germany's foreign policy.

German foreign policy, as distinct from (that of) many democratic states, is fixed in our philosophy of life.

This philosophy of our people of the new Third Reich is based on the maintenance and safeguarding of the existence of our German people.

We are not interested in oppressing other peoples.

WE DON'T WANT OTHER NATIONALITIES

We do not wish at all to have other nationalities among us. We want to live after our own patterns and let others live after theirs.

This, in a manner of speaking, may be called a racial bound conception leads to limitations of our foreign policy; that is, our foreign policy aims are not limitless or random ones nor are they determined by occasional happenings.

They are laid down by determination to serve the German people alone, to maintain it in this world and to preserve its existence.

What is the situation today? You know that at one time the German people too was imbued, under the slogan "Self-determination of peoples," with belief in supernatural assistance, and that it thereby renounced utilizing its own strength to the very end.

You know that this weak German trust of those days was shattered by the Versailles treaty, and you all remember what frightful consequences this treaty had.

WE WERE PERSECUTED FOR DECADE AND HALF

You remember how our people were robbed of their weapons and how the unarmed people were later mistreated.

You know the terrible fate that befell us, that persecuted us for a decade and a half.

And you know, too, that if Germany today has despite all become once more great, free, strong—it owes all to its own strength. Others contributed nothing to it.

They tried as long as possible to blackmail and oppress us. Out of our own people grew this power to end this humiliating situation and to show the people a way to go, worthy of a free, great people.

NOURISH NO ILL FEELING AGAINST OTHER NATIONS

Although we have become today free and strong through our own power, we nourish no ill feeling against other nations.

We know that peoples cannot be made responsible for what an unprincipled clique of international profiteers and jobbers is to blame for.

These profiteers do not recoil from pressing entire nations into the service of their mean interests.

We bear no hatred in us against the surrounding world and we have proved it. German love for peace has been proved by these facts:

First, we had hardly begun restoration of German equality when I proposed to the entire world, as a visible sign of renunciation of any so-called revenge, quite a number of agreements. They were in the line of limitation of armaments.

THEY WOULDN'T LISTEN TO DISARMAMENT PLAN

My first proposal: Germany demands equality under all circumstances, yet it is willing generally to renounce armaments and weapons, if necessary to the last machine gun, and disarm completely if other nations do the same.

This was not even taken as an occasion for discussion.

Then came the second proposal: Germany is willing to limit her army, like other states, to 200,000 men with the same arms as the others.

This, too, was rejected.

OFFERED TO RENOUNCE HEAVY ARMAMENT

Germany's second proposal—ready if others do likewise to renounce heavy armament, the so-called aggressive weapons, namely, tanks, bombers, heavy and super-heavy artillery.

It was rejected.

I now proposed an international regulation with a 300,000-man army, the same to apply to all European countries.

Again this was rejected.

I then offered further suggestions: At least, the elimination of air fleets, elimination of bomb throwing, absolute outlawing of poison gas in war, the safeguarding of the homeland and of lands not lying in the line of attack, the elimination at least of the heaviest artillery and elimination of the heaviest tanks.

That, too, was declined. It was all in vain.

I ISSUED COMMAND TO ARM GERMAN

After I had thus for two years made offer after offer and received nothing but rejection after rejection, I now issued a command to put the German defense force, in the best position that could possibly be achieved by us.

I can now admit that openly. We have now, to be sure, completed a rearmament the like of which the world has not seen.

First, I offered disarmament as long as that was possible.

After it was rejected I certainly made more halfhearted concessions. In this I am National-Socialist (Nazi) and an old front fighter.

If they do not want an unarmed world, then, German people, bent arms that are stronger than others.

I have armed up these five years. I have spent millions on arms. The German people know it.

I have said: Let a new army be raised with the most modern arms possible. I have asked my friend (Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering) to provide me with an air force that will protect the German people against all attack.

So we have built up a defense force that the German people today may be proud of, and which the world will respect whenever it makes its appearance.

We have created the best anti-aircraft equipment and the best anti-tank equipment that there is in the whole world.

Work has gone on day and night for these five years.

On one single point I have succeeded in coming to an understanding, to which I shall refer later.

(This was taken to be in reference to the Anglo-German naval agreement of 1936 by which Germany agreed to limit its navy to 35 per cent of Great Britain's.)

Nevertheless, I have carried on politically my erstwhile thoughts of armaments limitation or a disarmament policy.

In those years, I have really conducted a practical peace policy.

I have attacked all seemingly impossible problems with a firm will to solve them peacefully if at all feasible even at the risk of more or less important German sacrifices.

WANTED TO SPARE EXPERIENCE OF WAR

I am a front soldier myself and I know how terrible war is. I wanted to spare the German nation this experience and therefore I took up problem after problem with a firm resolve to attempt everything to make an amicable solution possible.

The hardest problem of our people, my fellow citizens, was Polish-German relations. We faced the danger of steering ourselves into, let us say, fanatical hysteria. The danger existed that in this case a conception like inherited enmity would gain possession of our peoples as well as the Polish people.

This I wanted to forestall. I know perfectly well that I would not have succeeded alone if at that time there had been a democracy of western construction in Poland.

DEMOCRACIES CALLED WAR INSTIGATORS

For these democracies running over with peace phrases are the most bloodthirsty war instigators. There was no democracy in our land but there was a man. With him we succeeded in less than a year in arriving at an agreement which presently, for the duration of ten years, basically removes the danger of any clash.

We all are determined, and also convinced, that this agreement will bring about lasting and continuous pacification, because problems in eight years are no different from those today.

We do not have to expect anything from each other. We recognize this. We are two peoples. They shall live. One cannot annihilate the other. I recognize this and we must see it. A state of 13,000,000 people will always strive for an outlet to the sea.

POLISH UNDERSTANDING HAD TO BE AND WAS FOUND

Here the road to understanding had to be found, and it was found. And it is being widened and expanded.

We have given guarantees for the states in the west. We have guaranteed to all contiguous neighbors the inviolability of their territory so far as Germany is concerned.

To be sure, there is here one of our sacred will.

We are not interested in breaking peace. We do not want anything from these peoples. It is a fact that these our offers were meeting with increasing acceptance and also growing understanding.

IDiotic DELUSION OF GENEVA

Slowly, more and more nations are departing from the idiotic delusion of Geneva; I should like to say, departing not from collective peace obligations but from collective war obligations.

They are withdrawing therefrom and begin to see problems soberly and are ready for understanding and peace.

I have gone further. I extended a hand to England. I renounced voluntarily ever again joining any naval conference so as to give the British empire a feeling of security, not because I could not build more—and there should be no illusion about that—but exclusively for this reason: To safeguard permanent peace between both nations.

(This was the reference to the Anglo-German naval pact promised earlier in Hitler's speech.)

To be sure, there is here one pre-condition—it cannot be admitted that one part should say: I do not want to fight you any more and therefore I offer you to cut my arguments down to

Here's How Hitler Proposes to Cut Up Czechoslovakia

This is Hitler's map of Czechoslovakia. Notice bottleneck at Brunn (Brno) which would narrow the little republic at one point, like a wasp-waist corset, to a 30-mile strip. Hitler demands that no property in the area he demands be removed or destroyed—a condition which would deprive thousands of Czech farmers in the region of everything they own if they wish to retain their status as independent Czechs.

35 per cent, and that the other party should say from time to time. We will fight again when it suits me.

That won't do. Such an agreement is morally justified only when both peoples shake hands on an honest promise never to wage war upon each other again.

FRANCO-GERMAN DIFFERENCES AT END

Germany has this will. We all hope that among the English people those who will prevail who are of the same mind.

I have gone further. Immediately after the Saar had been returned to the Reich by plebiscite, I told France there were no more differences between France and us.

(Under League of Nations auspices, 540,000 voters of the mineral-rich Saar basin territory, lying between France and Germany, chose overwhelmingly in a plebiscite January 13, 1935, to return to Germany.)

(Transfer of the area was affected without incident after the vote, which was provided for in the Versailles treaty.)

I said: Alsace-Lorraine does not exist any more for us.

(Alsace-Lorraine was taken from France after the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, and the peace treaties after the Great War returned it to her.)

These people really have not been asked their opinion in the last few decades. We believe that the inhabitants of those parts are happiest when they are not being fought over.

WE ALL DO NOT WANT WAR WITH FRANCE

And we all do not want any more war with France. We want nothing of France, absolutely nothing.

And when the Saar territory was returned to the reich, thanks to—I will say so right here—thanks to France's loyal execution of the treaty, I immediately gave the French assurance: Now all the territorial differences between France and Germany are settled.

No longer see any differences at all. There are two nations. They can live best if they work together.

After this renunciation, irrevocable once and forever, I turned to another problem, solvable more easily than others because a mutual philosophic basis served as a pre-requisite for an easier mutual understanding: Germany's relations to Italy.

Certainly the solution of this problem is my work only partially. The other part is due to the ray of light from Benito Mussolini whom the Italian people is fortunate to possess as its leader.

This relationship has long left a sphere of clear economic and political expediency and over treaties and alliances has turned into a real strong union of hearts.

Here an axis was formed represented by two peoples, both of whom in their philosophical and political ideas found themselves in close indissoluble friendship.

I CUT THE CLOTH FINALLY AND DEFINITELY

Here, too, I cut the cloth finally and definitely, convinced of my responsibility toward my countrymen.

I have relieved the world of a problem that from now on no longer exists for us.

Bitter as it may be for a few, in the last analysis the interest of the German nation stands above all.

This interest, however, is: to be able to work in peace.

This whole activity, my fellow citizens, is not a phrase that cannot be proved, but instead this activity is demonstrated by facts which no political liar can remove.

Two problems remained. Here I had to make a reservation.

Ten million Germans found themselves outside the Reich's confines in two large contiguous regions—Germans who desired to come back into their homeland.

This number of ten millions is not a trifle.

It is a question of one-fourth of the number of inhabitants of France.

And if France during 40 years did not renounce its claim to a few million French in Alsace-

Lorraine, certainly we have a right before God and man to keep up our claim to these 10,000,000 Germans.

LIMITLESS YIELDING IS A WEAKNESS

Somewhere, my fellow countrymen, there is a limit—a limit where yielding must cease because it would otherwise become a harmful weakness and I would have no right to maintain a place in German history if I were simply to renounce ten millions without caring about them. I would then have no moral right to be Fuehrer of the German people.

I have taken upon myself sufficient sacrifices in the way of renunciations. Here was a limit beyond which I can not go. How right this has been proven first by the plebiscite in Austria, then by the slow and gradually and in this he succeeded up to a certain point.

He has plunged countless people into deepest misery.

He has managed to keep millions of people in fear and trembling and with continuous application of terror he succeeded slowly in gagging those millions.

It was then that the true reasons for existence of this state, seen from an international viewpoint, were revealed.

STATE DESTINED TO RAIT GERMAN

It was no longer a secret that this state was destined to be used as a German baiter when the opportunity offered.

The French Air Minister Pierre Cot a few weeks ago said bluntly: "We need this state because from its territory German economic and industrial life can be most easily destroyed."

So this state was used by Bolshevism at its point of entry.

It was not we who sought a contact with Bolshevism, but Bolshevism used this state to dig a channel into central Europe.

And now comes this scandalous situation: This state which is ruled by a minority only, forces its nationalities to a policy that one day makes them shoot their own brothers.

Mr. Benes rises and demands from Sudeten Germans: If I conduct war against Germany you must shoot Germans. If you do not want to be the traitors and I will have you shot.

And he demands the same from Hungarians, Poles and Slovaks, that they defend aims which are indifferent to the Slovak people.

CZECH STATE BEGAN WITH ONE BIG LIE

This Czech state began with one big lie and its father's name was Benes. (Cries of "Hang him!")

This Mr. Benes at that time turned up at Versailles and told them that there was the Czechoslovak nation. (Loud laughter.)

He had to invent this lie to bolster up an insignificant number of his own nationals so as to make them seem more important.

And Anglo-Saxon statesmen who are not so good at geographical and national questions did not think it necessary to put Mr. Benes' assertions to a test or else they would have discovered pretty quickly that there is no Czechoslovak nation, but that there are Czechs and Slovaks and that the Slovaks prefer to have nothing to do with the Czechs.

At last the Czechs through Mr. Benes annexed Slovakia. As this state did not seem to be able to live on, it simply took three and a half million Germans against their right of self-determination and their will to self-determination.

Yet this did not suffice. Hence 1,000,000 Magyars had to be added, then the Carpatho-Russians and at last several hundred thousand Poles.

Thus the state was created which later called itself Czechoslovakia in contradiction to the right of the self-determination of nations and in contradiction to the clear wish and will of the raped nations.

FEELS SYMPATHY FOR ALL OPPRESSED

As I here talk to you now I feel sympathy for the fate of all these oppressed, I feel for the fate of Hungarians, Slovaks, Poles, Ukrainians—naturally I am speaking only for the fate of my Germans.

When Mr. Benes lied his state together at that time he solemnly promised to divide the state into cantons according to the Soviet system because there were some among the democratic among all German tribes. Their death of children is the greatest, unemployment is the most terrible there.

Suicides are more frequent. It is only a question as how long this is to endure.

FOR TWENTY YEARS WE'VE LOOKED ON

For 20 years Germans in Czechoslovakia and German people in the Reich looked on. Perhaps they had to look on, not because they were ever willing to take it, but because they were defenseless and could not help themselves from their tormentors and the world—these world democracies?

Yes, when anywhere a traitor is locked in or if a man, if you please, who has been inciting against their race from the pulpit is merely taken into custody then there is excitement in England and indignation in America.

But when hundreds of thousands of humans are driven out, when tens of thousands are delivered into jails, when thousands are massacred—then these fine democracies are not moved in the least.

We have learned in these years thoroughly to despise them.

During all this time and even today—this I must state—we find but one state, one great power in Europe and at its head, above all, one man who has a full understanding for this ardent need of our people.

It is, I think I may say this is my great friend, Benito Mussolini.

We shall never forget what he did during this time and what attitude the Italian people took.

If a similar hour of need should come for Italy I will go before the German people and urge it to take a similar stand.

ITALY AND GERMAN ONE SOLID BLOCK

Then there will not be two states defending themselves, but one solid block.

I said in the reichstag on February 22 (February 20) that this (meaning the Czechoslovak situation) must be changed. Only Mr. Benes changed it differently. He started a more radical system of oppression, greater terror, a period of dissolutions, bans, confiscations, etc.

This went on until May 21 and you can not deny, I think, that it was truly endless German patience that we practiced.

This May 21 was unbearable enough. I have told the story of this month already at the Reich's party convention.

That on last were to be elections in Czechoslovakia.

They could no longer be postponed.

INTIMIDATE GERMAN DURING ELECTIONS

So Mr. Benes thinks out a way to intimidate Germans there: military occupation of those sections. (Shouts of bloodthirst.)

He still keeps up this military occupation in the expectation that so long as his hirelings are there nobody will dare raise a hand against him.

It was an impudent lie that Germany had mobilized. That

It was, however, in 1910 that the Overholt family in Pennsylvania, the first of that name, had come over here from Germany. They had settled in the county of Allegheny, and in 1910, it is interesting to note, they were the only family in the county who had been in the country for over 100 years.

Price of land was high, and the Overholt family, who were farmers, took precedence over many other families who were also farmers, and who had been in the country for over 100 years.

AMENDED PLANS FOR STATE BUILDING APPROVED BY ICKES

Structure, To Cost $815,419,
Will House Welfare and Other Departments.

Amended plans for Georgia's new six-story state office building, to cost $815,419, have been approved by Administrator Harold L. Ickes and President Roosevelt, the regional office of the Public Works Administration reported last night.

To be built with Georgia products as far as possible, the structure will house the state departments of public welfare, health, education, and labor; the unemployed compensation board, the industrial and milk control boards and the purchasing department. An animal-laboratory will be built in the rear. PWA has granted $366,937, the largest single grant made in the state under the present program.

Filed on August 23, the original plans called for a four-story building housing only the departments of welfare, health and education, and costing $569,965. On September 10, after Governor Rivers told the Capitol Square Improvement committee that he would make an extra sum of state money available, the revised plans were submitted with provision made for two extra floors, and increasing the cost by $245,454.

Construction should start within eight weeks, and be completed within 16 months, PWA engineers indicated.

The building will be built on three sides of a court, and will be 200 by 180 feet. In Greek revival style, it will harmonize with the state capitol across the street. Described by the architects as fireproof and modern in every respect, the base will be of Georgia granite, and the exterior of Georgia marble.

Members of the Capitol Square Improvement Committee are M. D. Collins, chairman; T. F. Abercrombie and Lamar Murdaugh.

Mindling Pens This Soliloquy To '39 New Car

Shining new automobiles bearing the 1939 label upset the daily routine of the Atlanta weather prognosticator yesterday.

George W. Mindling has long maintained calendar dates such as that of the equinox are of no significance in determining the beginning and ending of seasons.

Usually the weather conditions have been substantiated his claims.

But yesterday there was a heckler, one entirely unexpected. The automobile manufacturers brought out new year models three months early.

He could see no early winter as the cause and he doesn't think winter has stolen a ride.

The intricate instruments used by the weather observers supported Mr. Mindling, so with light heart he sat down and penned this "Soliloquy of the New Car" which follows:

I am the car of the coming new year,
Determined I'll never be late;
Though it's only September, already
I'm here.

When it's over three months till my date,
I make an appeal to your eye;
My form and my polish produce such a cheer.

I almost compel you to buy.
I am the car of the coming new year;
I will give you a smooth, easy glide;
I can take the rough places without and fear.

Of marring your joy as you ride.
Now I want a new owner this coming
new year.
Who is equally up to the time.
Who can step up his pace in a super high gear.

And then come to a stop on a dime.
And I want a new owner this coming
new year.
Impressive, efficient and strong.
Who can take all the jolts of his varied career.

With a sweet happy face and a song.
And the owner I want in the coming
new year.
Will so gracefully sweeping along
Never making a racket the whole town can hear.

As if all in creation were wrong.

Moro Castle.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—Offices of the Ocean Steamship Company here said today that Captain John H. Diehl, a veteran master of the line and a hero of the Moro Castle disaster, died Friday in the Boston Marine hospital.

Captain Diehl, who retired two years ago because of ill health, had been with the line for 35 years, and had served on nearly all of its coast-wise vessels. He was awarded a gold medal two years ago for directing the rescue of 96 persons from the burning liner Moro Castle in September, 1934.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 27, 1938.

THE WORLD WAITS

If there was any faint hope of peace to be gleaned from the speech of Reichsfuehrer Hitler in Berlin yesterday, it was so little as to be almost imperceptible. He made it unmistakably clear that only complete capitulation of the Czechoslovakian cabinet to the demands that government already has declared are unacceptable, will prevent the explosion that the world fears will plunge all nations into war.

Doubtful significant is the fact his unyielding reiteration came a full three hours after Great Britain had formally notified him that the empire would join with France and Russia in military action in the event the Czechoslovakian borders are crossed by an invading German army. If anything, the German dictator went farther along the road from which there is no turning, and his vituperation against the democracies of the world rose to a point never before equalled in the public utterances of the head of a responsible government. He reasserted his ultimatum to the Czech government, with armed invasion the sole alternative. That these territorial demands go far beyond those anticipated in British and French consideration is illustrated by the startling about-face of the two nations in their dealings with the Nazi chancellor. Diplomatic negotiations have been forewarned in favor of unmistakable warnings that precipitate action will embroil the entire continent.

It should be remembered that until yesterday the majority of the British cabinet was opposed to any form of joint action with Soviet Russia. If this attitude has so changed, then it is evident that the world does not yet know the full extent of the war crisis.

The Reichsfuehrer yesterday placed before his people a picture of the European situation so twisted as to be almost unrecognizable. He insisted, in the face of his personal knowledge to the contrary, that the peace of Europe rested solely in the hands of President Benes, of Czechoslovakia. The German people are kept in abysmal ignorance of the efforts of the world powers, at the greatest sacrifice of prestige, to discover a reasonable formula under which an honorable peace could be maintained. It is reasonably certain that the masses of German people do not want war. Their faces reflect a fear of war. Yet while they hope for peace, the Fuehrer drags them, if not to war, certainly to a rapidly crumbling brink.

The Kaiser in 1914 can be accorded a reasonable doubt of the attitude of Great Britain. There can be no doubt in the mind of Hitler. Yet he asserts his determination to invade Czechoslovakia in the face of the sternest warning ever issued by world powers and in the face of a plea by President Roosevelt—almost unprecedented in recent history—on behalf of the American people.

If there is any lingering hope for peace, it vanishes in the preparations being made by Great Britain, apparently for the inevitable. The fact that territorial troop units have been called to the colors reveals the extent of the alarm of the government. It is infinitely more significant than would be the calling of the national guard in this country, since these troops in Great Britain are equipped and trained for instant service and for instant incorporation into the regular army fighting units.

In this grave hour the world can only wait on the whim of a man mad with the lust for power. Only a miracle can swerve him from a path that to the world means a new and more terrible chaos. Only a Being greater than mankind holds within His power that miracle.

PARENT-TEACHER CO-OPERATION

Many years ago, because of an almost complete absence of that feeling of mutuality of interest between parents and teachers—so necessary to success in public education—the Parent-Teacher Association was organized. Prior to this time, the average parent scarcely knew the names of the teachers of his children unless, perchance, a fractious son or daughter came home with the customary note. It was all too frequently a matter of punishing for infractions already committed rather than prior co-operation as a means of preventing their commission.

The idea of creating a co-operative organization to bring parent and teacher into a closer relationship was advanced by a Georgia woman, Mrs. Alice McClelland Birney. It was so sound in principle it immediately grew into a nation-wide movement. Today it is as much a part of the public education system as the school itself. It is altogether fitting, therefore, that the governor of the state, by public proclamation, has set aside the week of October 2 as Parent-Teacher Week.

The objective of the organization during these seven days will be to enroll every father, every mother and teacher, and as many interested citizens in school areas as possible. It is confidently expected that state membership will be increased to 55,000, a nominal goal, to say the least, when it is remembered the total enrollment of school children runs into hundreds of thousands.

Each school organization is left to develop its own plans, to improve conditions to fit individual school needs. No orders come from higher up. It is a truly localized, democratic institution. The only requirement from general headquarters is that co-operation between parent and teacher be set up as the main purpose. One of P-T-A's more tangible accomplishments has been providing wholesome lunches at the schools, regularly, at nominal cost without profit.

Every father and mother of children in the public school system, and those with prospective pupils, should become familiar with and support the work of the organization. And how else can this best be done than by joining up and taking part in the good work?

FORESTRY PROBLEM IN GEORGIA

Next to fire prevention, according to the Department of Natural Resources of the state of Georgia, the portable sawmill is the most acute forestry problem in the state. An estimated 40 per cent of the total timber cut is taken each year by this type of mill—amounting to twice as much as at present consumed by pulp mills. Little or no thought, however, is being given the future timber supply by these operators. This is not surprising in view of the fact no concerted attempt has ever been made to make them forestry conscious.

The truth of the matter is the average portable sawmill operator feels it is poor business to bother about conservation, to leave a portion of the stand for further growth and cutting, when he knows the chances are good that his competitor will cut those very trees left by him to grow larger.

"The most perplexing phase of the small sawmill operator," to quote the same authority, "is the fact that their number is so large, and, being portable, the mills move over the country in which they are located too rapidly to permit contact by public foresters. Any one of those mills is literally here today and gone tomorrow." Intermittent operations also add to the difficulty of developing a feeling of personal responsibility. A portable mill may run six weeks, shut down for three months, then resume cutting, only to shut down again.

But the short-sighted practice of "clear cutting" must be stopped if the forests of the state are not to be eventually destroyed. Adverse public opinion is gradually changing this practice among the large sawmills and pulp mills. Nothing short of a demand by the people for a complete program of conservation will put an end to the indiscriminate waste of the state's forest resources.

A solution of the problem, however, in all probability, will be found with the timber owner rather than with the portable operator. He, above all others, should never forget that it takes trees to make timber; that trees don't grow overnight. If he sells the portable sawmill man the right to make a clear sweep of his lands his future timber resources are gone at one fell swoop. Let him take heed before it is too late.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT WAR MAY MEAN TO US

(From The Columbia State.)

The general belief is that sooner or later this country will inevitably become involved in a European war. Temporarily, after a while, domestic business may pick up, money become plentiful, as in the days before we entered the last war.

Are we to play the same old game? During the first three years of the World War, ending only a score of years ago, we managed to stay aloof, materially to prosper, and actually to attain the financial leadership of the world. But the twin involvements of financial commitments to the Allies and resentment against Germany's violation of neutral rights continued to pull us closer and closer to the brink until finally we were plunged into it.

This, with little variation, appears to be the schedule now, only this time we may enter sooner; and for the same professed reason: To make the world safe for democracy and thus safe for America. Suppose Italy throws her forces with Germany. This would mean a harder task for the Allies and a greater burden to the United States. Japan would also lend her influence to Germany, meaning added trouble for Uncle Sam. In the former struggle there was no back door to the Pacific to look after. This now may become a front door and the Far East a problem falling to the care of the American navy unaided by the Allies.

How many disclaimers of the League of Nations are now wishing that America in her strong and proud and capable days had bravely taken the leadership and made the League a success! A strange philosophy: Co-operation in war and refusing to co-operate in peace!

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

GARNER KEY MAN WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Now the purge is done, it's clear that, next to the President's oval office, the most important place in Washington next winter is going to be the airy private chamber, ornamented in the capital's best general Grant tradition, which John Nance Garner calls his "bureau of education."

The President's assault on his party's conservative organizations has been repulsed with much shedding of oratory. The unpurged purges will return to congress with blood in their eye. And having seen the force of the President's anger, all conservative Democrats will look to their natural leader—the vice president.

Moreover, it's time to think of 1940 now, and no one is pondering that interesting date with a shrewd intensity than the bushy-eyed-browed squire of Uvalde. It can be stated pretty definitely that he holds the position as the leader of the Democratic conservatives. There are numerous signs that he is already preparing to make 1940 safe for his friends. In the next year or so, the "bureau of education" is sure to be the scene of more plain and fancy horse-trading than Goshen fair.

1937 AND 1940 Jack Garner is one of the ablest men in public life, and the most remarkable of his many abilities is a talent for keeping completely mum. That is why no one on earth, with the possible exception of Mrs. Garner, now knows whether he would like to be a conservative Democratic candidate himself. His only recorded observation on the subject was at the time of the 1937 inauguration. It was made after the President had ridden, smiling, through a drenching downpour, from the White House to the capitol. With the Garnerian sail removed, it was: "I don't want your job. So, for God's sake, stop taking chances like that."

Since that moment of rough affection, much has happened to sour the friendship between Jack Garner and Franklin Roosevelt. Spending, labor policy, the court fight, party realignment—the subjects of disagreement need not be rehearsed. Jack Garner has continued mum in public, while, in private, among his friendly friends, he has done his best to impose his views on congress. There have been moments when he lost his temper completely, but he has restrained himself from any outburst.

Since then also, however, he has begun to receive between 400 and 500 letters a week, all demanding that he stand for the presidency, all telling him to speak out, and calling him the "hope of the country." Since then the Texas Democratic convention has unanimously endorsed him as the state's 1940 candidate, and many of his own best friends have urged him to make the race. Under such pressure, few men could withstand temptation. Jack Garner is one of the few. He may yield, but he won't do so unless mature consideration of his chances shows that he has a really good bet.

FROM THE PECAN GROVES

It would be wrong to suppose that a reconciliation between the President and Garner is no longer possible. When he took office, he told the President he had two rules—that he would never ask for a single appointment, and that he would never volunteer advice to the White House. If the President should go to him for advice, and take it; if he should indicate that the purge mood is past, trouble is that the chances are 100 to 1 against the President's doing anything of the sort.

That is why it's virtually certain that the "bureau of education" will be the scene of so much horse-trading. The controlling motive of Garner's political life is the adoration for his party which old-fashioned southerners have. He is satisfied with the Democratic party as it is today. He doesn't want the sort of new-fangled Democratic party desired by the Texas Democrats. And he will work to keep the party as he knows and loves it.

In the immediate future, he is likely to be the behind-the-scenes leader of congressional opposition. To those who have urged him to "speak out," he has always answered that he "made his views known where they did the most good"—namely, among the senators and representatives. He will be doing that again when he gets back to his quieting summer home in the pecan groves. He will be considering his own chances, and the chances of Bennett Clark, and those of Burt Wheeler, and of Jim Farley. And his eventual decision is likely to become a major factor in American politics.

SILHOUETTES

By EARLE HOLDEN.

(Guest Columnist.)

We hope some day to be able to stand on a street corner, watch the parade go by and observe the removal of hats on the part of every male person witnessing the parade. The hat removal procedure of course being when Old Glory passes by. Too many times we have observed that there is little respect shown for the American flag as it passes. It is a time when we as Americans should respect Old Glory and all that the red, white and blue stands for, that time is at hand.

We have discussed this apparent discourtesy to the flag with several friends from time to time. We talked about this great love of ours and what it stands for and we wondered if young America was being given the proper training as regards to respect for the flag and country. Or is this 1938 land of ours so classed as an old-fashioned tradition, which it certainly should not be?

Are we fully aware as to the meaning of free speech? Are we aware that we here in America have the right, by constitution, to say what we want to say? We wish to say without the least worry that we face the firing squad in the morning? Is young America taught the meaning of their right to have free speech? Let us hope so for the benefit of all concerned.

Appreciation

Our Rights. The honor and privilege of writing this column in the absence of its regular editor, it was not our idea to take advantage of the situation to do a bit of flag waving. But one wonders as the days pass by and we read the screaming headlines of the European situation, if we are really doing enough flag waving in this country. We do not want war, of course. We do not want flag waving with any thought of war, but what we do want is for every man, woman and child in America to have a deeper appreciation of the right that is theirs, the right to call themselves an American citizen.

Tonight in foreign lands, thousands of men, women and children would go to bed with a gas mask parked beside them. They know not the hour when the dropping of planes will awake them from their slumber. They know not the minute when death from the skies will strike to snuff out the lives of all alike. Bombing planes are not particular in their visits of death. Neither women nor children are spared. This is the situation that faces the people of other lands. How many of them wish that they were living in America today? But we who are here, who can sleep tonight safe in our beds, without thought of death and destruction, have we ever given any thought as to why we can do this?

Safest Place

In Trying Times. Now is the time for all to come to the realization that America is not only the greatest country in the world, but just about the safest place to be in these trying times. Yet there are those within our borders who would like to see us destroyed. There are those, too, who doubt, across the seas who are jealous of us and hope some day to see us in the same situation as the countries now facing war. But this is America, our forefathers shed blood for our safety. They fought for a purpose, a principle. To create and make a land where their off-spring could live and be happy, safe and free from invasion. An our forefathers were patriotic. One would have to have patriotic thoughts in order to plan as they did, in order to create a land such as ours.

Let us therefore give some thought to flag waving. Let us raise our hats in salute when Old Glory passes by on parade. Let us be thankful for the things that we have, which other countries do not have. Let us keep alive in our belief that America is a great land and that we are fortunate to be a part of her. Let us pray that we shall never again be thrown into war, but let us be prepared at all times to resist invasion of our shores. Let us sleep tonight, safely and soundly in our own home with the ones we love, rejoicing in the fact that on the morrow we awake, refreshed, ready for work, with no hanging over our heads in which we saw death and destruction strike from the skies.

Yes, truly America is great and it's great to be an American. But how great? You answer that question for us.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

RAIN.

Charles Mackay it was who said "Kings can not make it rain or shine, nor can they make it snow or hail."

There is an agreement with the observation of Mark Twain to the effect that we talk a great deal about the weather, but nobody has yet been able to do anything about it. All of which is by way of calling attention to the situation with reference to rainfall in this country at this time.

Whereas, up in New England, and as far south as Jersey, they are actually suffering from one of the greatest over-supplies of rainfall in their history, some 30 inches in excess of normal precipitation, we are 10 inches deficient, with no prospect, at this writing, of any relief. They had half as much rainfall in Connecticut last week as we have had in the first nine months of this year.

In the immediate Atlanta area we have had 14 inches of rainfall in September, through September 22. We should have had 2 inches, according to the normal precipitation for this section. It has been very dry here, except for two or three months. Fall gardening has been postponed, except where people are prepared to use artificial devices. It has been a grand season to save hay and pick what little cotton was made and harvest other crops, but the dry weather has reduced the potato and pea crops very materially in the Atlanta area. If it is as dry in south Georgia as it is here, we may expect a reduced sugar cane crop and other crops maturing in the fall.

Tennyson speaks of "the useful trouble of the rain"—a very suggestive statement. When it suits one man for it to rain, it upsets the plans of some other man. I suppose that is what Tennyson had in mind. We sometimes think we would improve the distribution of rainfall, but I wonder about it. Our trouble would be to look far enough ahead and far enough behind and far enough around. We

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Folklore of NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Gratifying a long-suppressed desire to use the word "apocryphal," I related recently a folk-tale of journalism in St. Louis about an editor who unaccountably misjudged the importance of the bulletin on the sinking of the battleship Maine, stuffed the story away deep inside the paper, and like a religious penitent retired to a proofreader's cell for the rest of his professional life.

The late Otto Floto, of the Denver Post, often would write a long story just to work up to the point of using a double-dome word, and newspapermen within his radius enjoyed reading to him as he circled, fidgeted and moved in for the kill which usually occurred in the last paragraph but one. His method was ceremonious, like that of a bullfight. His colleagues enjoyed reading the old master's preliminary cap work, and when at last he would come out with hedonistic irreverence or euphuism they would throw down the paper and not bother to give attention while the attendants dragged off the still-warm carcass of the vanquished word.

I didn't really think my story was apocryphal, for it used to be told annually by many of the veterans around the old St. Louis Press Club, but I knew there would never come a better chance to use that word, and after all these years in the business I did want to win my letter.

Tragic Error

And now comes a note from Robert Hammond Murray indicating that this tragic error occurred twice on the same night. Mr. Murray relates that another editor of the Rochester, N. Y. Democrat and Chronicle, also put the sinking of the Maine inside the paper.

"Our paper received the Sun or Laffan wire service, which this man loved as much as he despised the A. P.," says Mr. Murray. "Along about 8 p. m. my friend would get his schedule from Laffan, lay out his first page, pretty like and typographically balanced to a T. And after that nothing but the assassination of McKinley or Queen Victoria could make him change it. Well, this night I was on the long watch and my friend was reading his book and waiting for 30."

"He erupted and I drifted over to ask why. He shoved over the A. P. bulletin, under a Washington date. The Laffan wire was still open, so he pushed open the slide of the window that gave into the operator's coop and said, 'Ask 'em if they've got anything about this.'"

"Not a word, they say," reported the man on the Laffan wire.

Would Have "My friend swore horribly and said that if he were boss of the Associated Press he would fire the man who sent the bulletin first thing tomorrow. I said there might be something in it, as the A. P. usually didn't go off halfcocked, but he wagged his head and was still cursing when both wires gave good night."

"Bill Lyndon, the foreman waded in from the composing room and asked, 'Shall I close her up?' My friend scrawled a one-line head on the bulletin and said, 'Jam this in on number 2 or 3 if you can find room,' dumped his pipe, reached for his hat and called it a day."

"Unfortunately, our opposition, the Herald, bannered the bulletin that morning. My friend reported that duty 7 p. m. next night as usual, and approximately two minutes and 36 seconds later he severed his connection with the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle."

This treatment represents one school of thought in the handling of news. Exactly contrary was the attitude of an editor of a German daily, a client of the old United News. The German paper received only the high spots and those by telephone. One night there came a flash reporting the death of President Harding or a story of similar international importance, and Mr. Al Greene the night chief operator of the United News, grabbed a phone and with fine dramatic power yelled "Flash! President Harding dead."

"Oh, never mind," said the German editor. "We got enough news. We don't need no more news tonight."

would probably handle it fairly well for our own private needs, but it might not suit our neighbors at all, and in the long run we might not even suit ourselves. I expect we are going to have to go along with the weather pretty much as it comes to us, day by day, remembering the while that Jesus has taught us to pray, 'Give us this day our daily bread.'

Carrying Their Crosses

At Furnes, in Belgium, on the last Sunday in July is held the famous procession of the penitents when men and women stagger through the streets carrying heavy crosses. The procession has been held annually since 1398.

The Illiterate Cannot Learn

While Ignorance Assures Him That He Knows It All

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Contentment is nine parts ignorance of better things and better ways. For many generations the only illumination in cottages and palaces was provided by candles, and people were satisfied because they saw nothing better.

This generation has witnessed such a change in homes and home life as never was seen before in a like period. Perhaps it began at the first Chicago fair, for multitudes went home from that spectacle with new ideas; but automobiles and women's magazines and colleges deserve most of the credit, for they opened the eyes of provincials and revealed new and better ways of doing things, and thus taught us to be discontented with what we had. When the job wasn't complete, the movies and the example of the neighbors finished it.

The mother of all reform and progress is discontent, and the beginning of discontent is the knowledge of something better.

In many respects we are a backward people—New Yorkers as well as hill-billies—because we have been taught to believe that our country leads the world. Having no knowledge of better things, and seeing nothing to provide contrast, we are not even aware of the faults that shame us.

Enter any American city by rail or highway and your first impression is one of squalor and poverty and ugliness. Shacks, weed-grown lots, scattered refuse, billboards, unpainted, tumble-down houses.

The wealth is in the center of town; the beauty is concentrated on a few streets; the rest is civilization's back alley.

We have grown so accustomed to this arrangement that no other seems possible. But Sweden has found a better way. Where Stockholm's rows of handsome buildings end, the forest begins. There are no slums, no shacks, no wreckage of poverty.

The Swedes have led the world in two other reforms. They have rid their land of hydrophobia, and syphilis is so nearly conquered that new cases have been found within a year.

Why should our country lag behind? Swedes are no more intelligent than Americans. In fact, we have more millions of the same breed.

Our fault is the complacency of ignorance. We could easily do better, but we have no incentive to reform while pride assures us that no others are doing so well.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

The Bear That Walks Like a Man!

Now, the top hats of England and France have done since Peter the Great, a national morale. Despite the 'purges' it is unwise to believe Russia is on the verge of revolution or that any real internal troubles exist.

To say this is not to defend Communism but to admit self-evident truths.

It so happens the official report on cotton issued yesterday showed Russia no longer to be a buyer of cotton but, instead, practically an exporter of staple.

Georgia's naval stores business has suffered because of Russian competition. In 1929 Russia imported 112,463 barrels of rosin from the United States. Georgia produced 55 to 60 per cent of that rosin. In 1930 Russia did not import any. In 1938 Russia exported 70,000 barrels of naval stores.

There are other items which could be brought forward to demonstrate that Russia has made, and is making, industrial progress. She is far from being an industrial nation. The Russians have but scratched the surface.

Yet the Russians are a very comfortable ally for France and England these days when Germany appears determined to have war.

The Man With the Rifle

Wars grow increasingly difficult for the infantry man and his place in the mechanized war may become, territory is not conquered until there are men on it with rifles. The infantryman, poor devil, sees most of the war. He also gets most of it in the neck.

There has been a sort of rehearsal in Spain. The great machines which were supposed to detect planes and automatically to repel them, have not done the job. They have increased the efficiency of the anti-aircraft guns to a great degree. The plane, however, still has a chance.

Planes were in their infancy in the last war, dropping pump bombs and even, in some cases, darts and bottles filled with explosive and scrap iron. The great "flying fortresses," the huge bombers, the amazing pursuit planes, transport planes—all these change the story.

The concept of war has changed. Today's concept immediately includes bombed cities and bombed and gassed civilians. The treasures of Paris, Notre Dame, the Louvre; the riches of London, the Abbey, the Tower, the castles of the King and the historical buildings—all blown to bits by bombs.

Today's concept includes tremendous cities, such as London, starved out by transportation failures or destruction. Today's concept includes the populations of cities driven into fields without adequate sanitation, food or medical care.

Isn't pretty—this thing which Adolf Hitler seems determined shall come to the world.

No Passport Required.

Andorra, the tiny country which nestles in the Pyrenees between France and Spain, is the only country in Europe which requires no passport for entry.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Thou'dst have, great Glamis, that which cries,
"Thou must thou do it thou have it!"

Neville Chamberlain is neither the hero nor the villain of the current international piece, it seems to me, even though the tendency to make him out one or the other is widespread. He is simply the expression of England's divided feeling and the British Empire's precarious hold on itself. He is not a sordid statesman; he is a British one, serving Britain's interest, reflecting Britain's predicament. He could lead his country against the Siegfried line to save Czechoslovakia because his country was not willing—or agreed to go. He could not have been as decisive as the dictator of Germany because he is not a dictator of England. He represents a democracy which cannot keep further than it is prepared to go. British sentiment may hate the Czechoslovakian betrayal but not enough to go to war about it.

Americans should be able to understand Neville Chamberlain's dilemma because we are mercifully more remotely in the same one ourselves. President Roosevelt may talk of associating this country with others to put aggressor nations into quarantine but the major sentiment here is against war at any price. It is for keeping out, no matter what the humiliation or eventual worse consequence. It is for isolation and for the pacifism that depends more upon emotion than reason. There are many who believe, as does this column, that the real villain of the piece is this attitude in the greatest nation of all—our own—that the only thing which could stop Hitler and his associates would be a belief that eventually America would take its stand with the other democracies, that America will indeed have to take that eventual stand, and that the prevailing sentiment in America now against a stand is what lets the totalitarians go on and on, growing stronger and more aggressive with each step.

America's failure to join the League of Nations, America's tariff and the trade restrictions and international divisions it has brought about, America's brand of emotional and isolationistic pacifism that deprives the world of what could be its most authoritative voice for the international peace ultimately depends—all these make a great case against our country as the real author of the present crisis.

And yet we Americans are utterly sincere about it all, and more humanitarian than any other country in the world. Other countries in our place would be even more blind in isolation and pacifism than we are. Other democracies would, at any rate. Can it be that the villain of the piece is the very thing which gives the piece one of its principal objectives? Can it be that democracy is the villain? Let's hope not, and believe not, but unless democracy can manage somehow to become coherent and stout-hearted and to take its stand, it is doomed either to defeat or to such a bad name as will drive it from the world. If Germany and Italy and Japan are permitted to go on they may not need to overrun the democracies. They will simply out-advertise them, shine so in their coherence and success that the democratic philosophy will drown in its own predicaments.

PEEK CASE REWARD INCREASE IS ASKED

Request of Cobb County Officials To Be Discussed Today.

Request of Cobb county officials for the state to increase its reward offered in the Peek murder case will be discussed this morning at a conference with Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers.

Officials have offered to double the reward of Cobb county if the state will do likewise, in an effort to solve the brutal murder of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ed Peek, whose bodies were discovered in a railroad cut in Cobb county, June 21.

Cobb county has posted $100 and the state $200. Musgrove said he would do "all I can" to increase the state's amount as much as possible. A maximum of $250 usually is offered by the state.

An editorial in the Marietta Times called for increase of rewards to spur investigation of the unsolved double murder. Rumors that the Carroll county grand jury may go into the Peek case have been reported in the last week in Carrollton.

Both turned state's evidence in the trial last week of Hayden Driver, alleged leader, who was convicted and sentenced to from three to five years. Miss Helen Gentry, store cashier, also is under a three-year suspended sentence. All the sentences were passed by Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton county superior court.

Women to Learn Braille Figures To Help Blind

Women who can see will begin classes October 5 to learn to make Braille characters that they may help in the translation of books for Fulton county's 1,000 blind citizens to "read," General James H. Reeves, executive director of the Atlanta Red Cross, announced yesterday.

The students will be paid only in seeing pleasure-lighted faces of the blind who read the Braille books. They will assemble for 10 successive weeks under Miss Adelaide Nelson at 86 1-2 Luckie street. The class will be the fourth in as many years.

Graduates of the new course will co-operate with Mrs. Louise Denney, librarian for the local Braille library, in the Old Central Baptist church, on Cooper street, transcribing short stories, newspaper and magazine articles, poems and excerpts which would otherwise not be available for the blind to read.

The first book donated to the Braille library here was "Silhouettes in Rhyme," by Ralph T. Jones, associate editor of The Constitution. Of all the books donated, "Omnibus Boners" is the most popular, it was said.

Material to be transcribed by the volunteers after they are graduates will be sent to Washington, D. C., to be proofread, bound and returned for distribution in Atlanta. All books, once the local Red Cross sends them away, become the property of the Library of Congress.

airplane in the afternoon to tell Hitler of the decision of the western democracies and Soviet Russia to march if the Nazi war machine rolled eastward.

None here could say if it resulted in any 11th-hour change in Hitler's speech.

But Europe found hope in the fact that he did not make the announcement many feared was coming—that Nazi troops were marching into Czechoslovakia even as he spoke.

Tonight's statement issued in London marked a reversal of Prime Minister Chamberlain's policy of "dealing with dictators" and for the first time Britain, France and Soviet Russia stood definitely committed to fight for Czechoslovakia although France and Russia have pledged under defensive alliances with the war-born republic.

France To Decide. Official quarters declined to elaborate on the statement but it was understood reliably Britain and Russia would let France decide what constituted a German attack on Czechoslovakia.

This presumably meant Britain and Russia would accept France's decision but did not rule out the possibility of Britain attempting to influence the French.

It was recalled French Premier Edouard Daladier last week indicated French aid for Czechoslovakia would be forthcoming only if her territory beyond the Sudeten districts was attacked.

The feeling in Britain and France has stiffened considerably since then, however, and it was understood unofficially that an "attack on Czechoslovakia" now means invasion of the present frontiers of the republic.

Trenches were being dug in London's famous parks; thousands of persons, including children and aged couples, stood in line for gas masks.

King George VI, facing his most trying days since the abdication of Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor, summoned the privy council into session at 10 p. m. (3 p. m., Atlanta time.)

British leaders had spent most of a harrying and tense week end conferring with Daladier and his foreign minister, Georges Bonnet, and today with French Chief of Staff General Maurice Gustave Gamelin.

Developments in the series of events as Britain feverishly rushed preparations for war included:

1. Chamberlain called parliament to meet Wednesday.

2. Both Chamberlain and Daladier, before the latter's departure for Paris, sent messages thanking President Roosevelt for his appeal for peace.

3. Britain called out territorial troops for anti-aircraft and coast defense work; naval and royal air force reserves continued to report for duty; royal air force leaves were cancelled; the observation corps was called up.

Thousands of soldiers were put to work digging trenches at Aldershot, the largest military area in the United Kingdom.

Parks and other open spaces were being commandeered by city corporations in Manchester, Liverpool, Reading, Bristol, Nottingham and other large cities and trench-digging was being carried on through the night.

Daladier and Bonnet flew back to Paris at 3:15 p. m. (8:15 a. m., Atlanta time), ending two days of vital talks precipitated by Hitler's demands for union of Sudetenland with Germany by October 1.

Before his departure, the French premier in a message to President Roosevelt pledged "with unflinching tenacity to look for any procedure for formal agreement which may be compatible with the dignity and vital interests of the nations involved."

General Gamelin flew here to confer for the first time under the Anglo-French military understanding, meeting, among others, War Minister Lesclapart, chief of the

Windsor Expected Home If War Flares

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(P)—The Duke of Windsor's equerry told the London Daily Mirror today that the Duke probably would return to England if war were declared.

The paper reported that the equerry speaking from Cap d'Antibes, France, said: "In the event of war the Duke's plans are made and it is probable that he will return to London."

British imperial staff, and Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for coordination of defense.

Britain and France tightened their military accord April 29. It was believed in today's deliberations that an agreement was reached that in event of war France would direct the armies and air forces of both countries while Britain would supervise both navies.

With General Gamelin's departure it was assumed that staff talks would be proceeding through military attaches on involved plans of campaign if the two nations felt forced to go to war.

There was an almost endless series of conferences during the day. General Gamelin joined Daladier and Bonnet in a conference with British cabinet ministers.

Personal Communication. It was announced after Chamberlain's consultations with the French ministers that he had decided to make a personal communication to the German chancellor, and Sir Horace Wilson has left this morning for Berlin for this purpose.

It also was announced that at the meeting "full accord was established on all points." A full cabinet meeting followed.

As the French ministers departed, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, Home Secretary Samuel Hoare, Sir Thomas Inskip, Hore-Belisha, Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, and Sir Kingsley Wood, air secretary, met.

King George VI cancelled a projected trip to Glasgow tomorrow to witness the christening and launching ceremony of the monarch's companion ship for the Queen Mary. Queen Elizabeth will give the liner her name.

Cheers came from the crowd around Buckingham Palace as the King left the privy council meeting at 10:35 p. m. (3:35 p. m., Atlanta time) to see the Queen depart from Euston station.

Earlier, at the end of a day of tense conferences, Chamberlain had gone to Buckingham Palace and reported to the King.

During the day sound trucks urging civilians to get fitted for gas masks. Long lines formed in all cities at air raid precautions centers.

To Remove Children. Arrangements were completed to remove all children to country billets instantly at the first air raid.

If bombers should come when they are in school they not even have a chance to bid farewell to their parents.

Americans eager to get home jammed the United States consulate. All steamship lines reported their liners were booked until October 21.

A number of foreigners, including Americans, sought American visas.

Stocks slumped and the pound sterling weakened, closing at $4.75 1-2, two and three-fourths cents under Saturday's close.

Britain's far-flung dominions were kept closely informed of developments, Chamberlain holding a long talk over the telephone with Australia's prime minister, J. A. Lyons.

A boom was lowered in Gibraltar to protect the southern entrance of the admiralty harbor and naval authorities called for volunteers for air raid precautions service.

Naval and military hospitals at Malta were ordered cleared.

Premier Mohammed Mahmoud Pasha, of Egypt, announced to that nation's chamber of deputies, that Egypt would stand by Great Britain in event of war.

Precautions Taken. He said all precautions had been taken and he pledged that the country would fulfill her obligations under the Anglo-Egyptian treaty of alliance.

In Britain, nearly 50,000 men were affected by the recall of the two anti-aircraft divisions of territorial. The number in the coast defense units called was not known.

Sand To Keep Home Fires From Burning--Londoners Shout 'Stop Hitler'

This is a portion of the huge crowd which gathered in Downing street to await the return of Prime Minister Chamberlain from his fateful meeting with Reichsfuehrer Hitler. Mounted police had difficulty in controlling this crowd. Downing street has held many shouting crowds in the past few days, crowds demanding "Stop Hitler" and giving encouragement to Czechoslovakia.

Members of the Irish volunteer service in County Mayo were called up. Regular army reservists already had been called.

London's insurance underwriters, revised the schedule of war risk rates, refusing to quote rates for Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland.

The joint rating committee announced rates for the conveyance of goods to and from these countries would be left to the discretion of the individual underwriters.

The Ministry of Health announced hospital authorities had been instructed to empty as many beds as possible by sending home patients fit to go so their beds would be available for victims of possible air raids.

Following a week end in which millions of persons received gas mask fittings, orders were issued in a number of London and provincial centers for distribution of the masks.

There are 35,000,000 of these masks stored in 11 cities. The first distributions were made in Liverpool this morning.

The city corporation of Cardiff, Wales, voted to construct nine miles of air raid shelter trenches. It estimated the shelters would accommodate 24,000 persons, 10 per cent of the city's population.

It was hoped to rush the work through in three days. More than 6,000 unemployed miners will do the job at an estimated cost of $80,000.

There will be no classes tomorrow in Liverpool's 200 schools. Instead, the children will be fitted with gas masks.

Deliveries of booklets on how to protect homes against air raids to every dwelling in the country will begin tomorrow.

U. S. DESTROYER IS ENGLAND BOUND

Navy Says Vessel Left on "Routine Cruise."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P)—The Navy Department announced tonight that the destroyer U. S. S. Somers, which left Norfolk Saturday, was en route to England on a "routine cruise."

Officials discounted reports that the Somers would be used for evacuating Americans in case of war. It was pointed out that the vessel was small, and not equipped to carry more than a few civilians and then only for a short voyage.

The Somers is a member of the recently constituted Atlantic squadron now being organized at Norfolk.

Party Leaders Leon Blum, former Socialist premier, and Paul Faure signed the cable. The flying trip of the premier and foreign minister to London inspired French confidence that the two western democracies had done everything in their power to find a compromise between Hitler's demands for Czechoslovakia's cession to Germany of Sudetenland and the Czechoslovak government's stand.

BORIS VISITS YUGOSLAVIA. BELGRADE, Sept. 26.—(P)—King Boris, of Bulgaria, arrived in Yugoslavia tonight after a month's vacation in western Europe, which included a visit yesterday with Adolf Hitler. In Yugoslavia he will be the guest of Prince Regent Paul.

ALL BUT GERMANY HAIL F. D. R.'S PLEA. President and Hull Hear Hitler's Ultimatum; Cabinet Will Meet Today.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(P)—Great Britain, France and Little Czechoslovakia hailed with enthusiasm and gratitude tonight a dramatic appeal from President Roosevelt for the preservation of peace.

But from Berlin, there came no immediate reply save Chancellor Hitler's declaration to the German nation that unless the Czechs complied with his demand for the Sudeten area, Germany would seize that territory.

At home, applause greeted the President's carefully-phrased appeal. Comment by the members of congress who are in Washington was uniformly laudatory. Many noted with approval that Mr. Roosevelt's message took an attitude of absolute neutrality.

The President had a long discussion of the European situation with Secretary Hull, and together they sat before the radio and listened to Hitler's speech.

The President decided to hold a special cabinet meeting tomorrow to consider the crisis. White House aides said the cabinet session had been moved up from Friday to Tuesday because of conditions abroad.

During the day, the State Department received word that the Czech-German frontier had been closed to passage by a group of Americans seeking to go from Czechoslovakia into Germany.

Chamberlain Replies. Neville Chamberlain, the British premier, replied "with gratitude" to the President's appeal for peace, and said it was "indeed essential" to "weigh the issues with all gravity before embarking on a course from which there may be no retreat."

Benes cabled Mr. Roosevelt his appreciation and a statement that the Sudeten question could be settled "without resort to force," adding, however, that if Czechoslovakia should be attacked, the nation would "defend itself."

Premier Daladier of France also cabled his thanks, spoke of the President's "moving appeal" and of the Franco-British efforts to maintain peace. It was "of special value" he added, that America had thus "solemnly reaffirmed the principles of the Kellogg treaty."

Psychological Moment. Informed persons said the administration had been watching for the psychological moment to make the appeal. The time was judged to have arrived with the early hours of today. Correspondents were aroused from sleep and summoned to the State Department. At 3 a. m. the statement was handed to them.

It was addressed to Hitler and President Benes, of Czechoslovakia. Later the plea for peace was sent also to Poland and to Hungary.

In his appeal, Mr. Roosevelt said hostilities would result in "unspeakable horror," would take the lives of millions of men, women and children, and shatter the social and economic structure of every nation involved.

"The United States has no political entanglements," he said. "It is caught in no mesh of hatred. Elements of all Europe have formed its civilization."

"The supreme desire of the American people is to live in peace. But in the event of a general war they face the fact that no nation can escape some measure of the consequences of such a world catastrophe."

FRANCE SWELLS FRONTIER FORCES

Civilians Begin Fleeing Paris as War-Time Conditions Prevail.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—(P)—The French foreign ministry tonight received simultaneous news of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech and authoritative reports that Britain and Soviet Russia would stand with France against any German attack on Czechoslovakia.

A spokesman said ministry officials were giving the two developments close study before making any statement.

War-time conditions were clamped down on France tonight. Not quite 20 years after the end of the last war, many of their countrymen were again seeing swarming ranks of soldiers march off to the frontiers.

Civilians began fleeing the capital, at the advice of the ministry of public works.

The American embassy advised all Americans to return home, if able to do so, because of the complicated situation prevailing in Europe.

Government ministers stayed constantly by their posts, ready for all emergencies. Premier Edouard Daladier, back from conferring at London with heads of the British government, called the cabinet to meet tomorrow at the Elysee palace.

Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet returned by airplane after conferring with British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Secretary for Foreign Affairs Viscount Halifax.

to await final developments that would turn Europe definitely to peace or war.

President Roosevelt's appeal for peace to Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany and President Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia aroused sentiments of gratitude, if not of relief, in France. The message also went to Daladier and Chamberlain.

Daladier sent his thanks for the United States executive's efforts directly from London.

The Socialist party, largest in the French parliament, cabled Mr. Roosevelt:

"The Socialist party and its parliamentary groups, certain to interpret the feelings of all French democracy, address to you the expression of their most cordial sympathy for your message which at the hour of greatest peril peace makes her voice of the universal conscience."

Party Leaders Leon Blum, former Socialist premier, and Paul Faure signed the cable. DUMPING BREAKS FOREIGN MARKETS

Billions Sheared in Unprecedented Crash, But U. S. Securities Hold Up.

(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.) NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Foreign security markets crashed today under one of the heaviest dumping movements in history on the threat of war in Europe but American stocks faced the crisis with a resistance that astounded market veterans.

While billions of dollars in market valuation were sheared from Europe's securities, including the highly rated British government bonds, American shares in New York declined 1 to 4 points in orderly trading and then recouped half the losses in a closing covering movement which followed the early passages of Adolf Hitler's speech. The market reports from abroad:

LONDON. British bonds—which usually fluctuate in units of 1-16 point—broke to losses ranging to 9 points under an unprecedented dumping wave which paralyzed bidding interest. Losses in most cases exceeded declines recorded in the entire week preceding the World War. Trans-Atlantic issues were down to losses ranging to more than 4 points. Czechoslovak bonds unsaleable although concessions ranging up to 12 1-2 points were made. German bonds down 13 1-2 to 14 points and Austrian bonds down 17 points as the Reich withdrew its support for those issues. Home stocks, industrials and rails, down to wide losses at the lowest levels since 1933. Sterling down 2 3-4 cents to $4.75 1-2, the lowest level since early 1935, and gold up 7 pence to 145 shillings 7 pence, a new high for a similar period, the steady buying from the reparation of Swiss and Dutch funds and a further flight to the dollar.

Security prices down 5 to 20 per cent with many issues untraded because of inability of buyers to arrive at a price. Suez Canal, off 1,165 francs. Bank of France down 275 francs and the government 412 francs cent remotes down 205 francs.

AMSTERDAM AND BRUSSELS. Unprecedented selling that found little resistance. Wide declines there exceeded the breaks which heralded the outbreak of the great war.

BERLIN. A sharp break followed by a moderate rally.

NEW YORK. The American trading community viewed the situation with considerably more calm than did the European nationals. In addition, many traders still were convinced that war or no war some American shares were cheap and the news makers' recovery here had placed business ahead of the market.

Some traders also believed that too bullish an interpretation had been placed upon the foreign news. Those beliefs were reflected in an active opening here in which stocks dropped 1 to 4 points in orderly trading.

When the Hitler speech was being delivered trading was almost at a standstill. Dealers deserted their posts to read the speech on the radio.

The peaceful passages in the early part of the speech engendered a strong, covering movement that wiped out the 1 to 4 point losses in some of the leaders and cut down declines in all sections of the list. Then for five minutes before the close a nervous tone developed and brought swings of a point and more in the leaders. But the uptrend persisted in most cases and the close was on a firm note.

PRAGUE, Sept. 27.—(Tuesday.)—(P)—Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff was reported today to have proposed a "peace by force" plan to Paris and London as the only possible answer to Chancellor Hitler.

Sources close to the Russian delegation said the Soviet plan was to send the French, British and Soviet ambassadors simultaneously to the German foreign office warning Germany they were prepared to defend Czechoslovakia.

The next step in the "peace by force" plan was said to be a demonstration of the armed might of the three powers as close to Germany as possible.

is what he declared. And what did he do? He did not lop off the territory—he drove out the Germans. Now that is something where the game is up. Hardly had Mr. Benes said this when his military subjugation began anew and in sharper measure. And now look at the figures: 10,000 one day, the next day 20,000, the next day 37,000, two days later 42,000, then 78,000, then it is 90,000, 137,000 and today 210,400. Hull Leaves Roosevelt After Hearing Hitler

Acme Telephoto.

Lips pursed, Secretary of State Hull is pictured as he left the White House where he and President Roosevelt listened to a broadcast of Hitler's belittling speech in which he attacked the head of the Czech government as a liar and lunatic. Hitler's address came a few hours after a direct appeal from Roosevelt for Hitler to negotiate in a friendly manner with President Benes.

to smoke Germans there out with grenades and gas.

But Mr. Benes sits in Prague and is convinced "nothing can happen to me. Behind me stand England and France."

And now, my fellow countrymen, I believe the moment has come for talking business.

20 YEARS' ENDURANCE PROVES LOVE OF PEACE

When anybody suffers such disgrace and such humiliation for 20 long years there certainly can be no doubt about his being peace-loving.

If anyone develops patience such as we developed it certainly cannot be claimed that we lust for war.

And finally, Mr. Benes has 7,000,000 behind him while here stands a people of 75,000,000.

I now have addressed a memorandum to the British government with a last and final German proposal.

ALL I DEMAND IS WHAT HAS BEEN PROMISED

This proposal is nothing else but the realization of what Mr. Benes already has promised.

The content of the proposal is very simple: Territory that is nationally German and wants to join Germany is to go to Germany.

Not when Mr. Benes has succeeded in driving out one or two million Germans, but right now, instantly.

I have selected a frontier that is fair to Czechoslovakia on the basis of material compiled some decades past on ethnographic and language divisions.

I am a more just man than Mr. Benes and I do not want to use the power I possess.

I have therefore adopted this rule: This and this territory comes under German sovereignty because it is essentially inhabited by Germans.

The final boundaries, however, I leave to a vote of the people there, meaning a local vote will be taken.

And so that no one can say that this would not be fair enough, I have decided to adopt the Saar plebiscite statute as a basis for this vote.

I was and am willing to have a plebiscite in the whole Czechoslovak territory.

MR. BENES OBJECTS TO GENERAL PLEBISCITE

But Mr. Benes objects to this and so do his friends, that this is to be only in certain sections.

Very well, I have yielded there. I said "Mr. Chamberlain if you insist on the principle that it is to be only in certain disputed sections—all right with me."

And so that no one can say this man problem, my patience is now exhausted.

I have made an offer to Mr. Benes. It is nothing else than realization of what he himself has already conceded.

He now holds in his hand peace or war.

Either he will now accept this offer and at last give the Germans their freedom, or we will now take this freedom for ourselves.

And there is one thing of which the world may have taken cognizance: Throughout four and one-half years of war and during the long years of his political life nobody has been able to charge me with having been cowardly.

I now head the procession of my people as first soldier and behind me—may the world know this—there now marches a people and a different one than that of 1918.

WE ARE NOW IMMUNE TO DEMOCRATIC PHRASES

Errant mentors of those times succeeded in infiltrating the poison of democratic phrases into our people, but the German people of today is not the German people of 1918.

Such phrases act like wasp's stings on us, but now we are immune.

In this hour the whole German people will be united to me, my will shall feel as their will, just as I regard its future and fate as mandate of my actions. And we will strengthen this common will as we did in the times of our struggles, the time when I went out as a lone, unknown soldier to conquer a reich.

Never did I doubt success and final victory. A body of brave men and brave women gathered around me and they went with me.

And so I ask my German people: Fall in behind me man for man, woman for woman.

In these hours we will take one holy common resolve. It shall be stronger than any pressure, any peril.

And when this will is stronger than pressure and peril, it will break the pressure and peril.

We are resolved! Let Mr. Benes choose!

100,000 Americans in Europe; Groups Leave Prague by Train

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(UP) The State Department tonight expressed increasing concern for the safety of 100,000 Americans in war-menaced Europe and redoubled its efforts to afford them quick exodus to the United States.

One hundred sixty-two Americans left Prague and the menace of war tonight aboard a special train, which will take the refugees to Budapest by way of Bratislava.

The train, which left Prague at 9 a. m. flying the American flag, was accompanied by a representative of the American consulate to whom many of the Americans, tourists, students and artists—had appealed for aid after being turned back when they attempted to cross the German border.

Other Embassies Warn. The 162 refugees included most of the 65 organized Americans led by Milton Shuffro, of Chicago, who appealed to United States Minister Wilbur J. Carr for aid Sunday after reportedly being warned that they might be placed in Nazi concentration camps if they attempted to cross Germany to reach Paris.

The general exodus of Americans after departure of most Britons and Frenchmen from Prague over the week end. On January 1 there were 88,147 Americans living permanently or semi-permanently in Europe. With tourists included the figure is well above 100,000.

Dollars at Premium. The largest numbers are in countries likely to be embroiled by war. In Italy there are 25,616, in Great Britain and northern Ireland 12,447; France 12,384; Czechoslovakia 5,190; Germany 5,896, and Austria, 787.

From Paris, after the embassy

Except for the staff of the legation, a group of journalists comprised virtually the entire American colony in Prague tonight.

United States embassies and legations in Paris, Berlin and other "hot spots" continued issuing warnings to American citizens "without urgent business" to leave Europe before they become stranded by transportation or passport difficulties.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull reiterated that there has as yet been no general evacuation order because the situation is changing so rapidly it is difficult to devise a set policy. He made it plain, however, that American travelers should visualize the possible risks, without specific advice from the department.

ALLOYS MAKE ALUMINUM

STILL MORE USEFUL...

A FACT ABOUT ALUMINUM TO TELL YOUR NEIGHBOR

The aluminum you use around the house is so light that you may have wondered how a railroad train built of it can be so strong.

The reason is that other metals can be mixed with aluminum to make it hard and strong. The resulting new metal is called an alloy. Some aluminum alloys are as strong as structural steel, although only a third as heavy.

When industry has a broad new use for aluminum, research scientists find an alloy exactly suited to the purpose. This has been going on so long that we have a large number of alloys, so that industry can make almost anything of aluminum. The United States yields first place to no other country in the knowledge and use of aluminum alloys.

Because of their lightness, strength, resistance to corrosion and cheapness, aluminum alloys are saving industry a great deal of money.

This research to create new aluminum alloys has cost millions of dollars, but it has been well worth while because it has enabled us to sell more aluminum.

That is the American way — to get ahead by helping everyone to get ahead. We have grown by making aluminum more useful.

FUEHRER BITTERLY ASSAILS BENES FOR CZECH STAND

HITLER DEMANDS PRAGUE DECISION WITHIN FIVE DAYS

Boasts of Army in Calling for Cession of Sudeten Lands.

In short, what a great power Germany has become.

This all indicated, by inference, Germany is going to fight.

But Hitler did not say so. With every German ordered to hear the Fuehrer by his own radio or a public address system, Hitler began speaking at 8:21 p. m. (1:21 p. m. Atlanta time), a little more than three hours after receiving Sir Horace Wilson, personal representative of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, with an urgent note.

There was no indication in the Fuehrer's address to any reaction he might have had to Sir Horace's message, reported authoritatively in London to have been a warning that Britain and Russia would join France in support of Czechoslovakia in event of a German invasion of Czechoslovakia.

While Hitler was speaking, Britain made it plain in diplomatic quarters in London that she, Rus-

Benes Will Make Broadcast Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—President Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, will make a special broadcast tomorrow on the Sudeten crisis. The address, to be made in English, will be carried from 4 to 4:10 p. m. (Atlanta time) by the National, Columbia and Mutual broadcasting networks.

The networks are continuing their schedule of overseas broadcasts at times that generally are not announced much in advance.

Benes and France had agreed upon such a course, although there was public doubt whether invasion of the Sudetenland would be considered a cause for aiding Czechoslovakia in view of Prague's agreement to cede the regions to Germany.

London indicated the issue hinged on France's course. On Friday Premier Edouard Daladier indicated France would aid Prague in event of invasion of "Czechoslovakia proper," although there was possibility of a stiffening of the French attitude since then to include the Sudetenland.

No German Comment.

Tonight a spokesman for the German government said he had no comment to make concerning this tri-power stand.

The Reichsfuehrer's statement that "the Sudetenland is the last territorial demand I have to make in Europe" was regarded as reassuring and of fundamental importance.

But the gist of the entire impassioned oration was that he would act, he would do something, if he did not have the Sudetenland by October 1—this Saturday.

The background for the Reichsfuehrer's address was a series of events which had brought Europe closer to war than at any time since the World War.

The final chapters were Czechoslovakia's agreement, under French and British pressure, to cede Germany the Sudetenland; the second talk, at Godesberg, Germany, between Hitler and Chamberlain; issuance of Hitler's "final" terms for peace with Czechoslovakia, involving turning over of the Sudetenland by October 1; Czechoslovakia's mobilization; far-reaching war preparations by France and Britain; and finally Sir Horace Wilson's mission today.

"Speaker for Germans."

During Hitler's negotiations with Chamberlain it was believed he had furthered particularly the Hungarian and Polish minority claims in Czechoslovakia. If so he did not indicate it tonight.

"I feel deeply," he said, "for the Hungarians, Poles, Slovaks, and Ruthenes, but most of all I am the speaker only for the Germans."

Hitler frequently and bitterly attacked President Benes, describing him as a liar and a promise-breaker.

"I hoped," Hitler declared, "until the last moment that Benes would recede from the unreasonable position."

"Benes, however, thought he could do anything he pleased to Germany, for he was protected by Britain and France."

"And if everything else went wrong, there was still Russia."

"I told Chamberlain plainly what I consider is the only solution; that I was not the man to look on indifferently when 3,500,000 Germans were maltreated."

There comes a moment when the word is 'enough.'

"France and England finally agreed to the cession of German territory in Czechoslovakia. Benes agreed; yes, these regions must be ceded.

"But what did he do? He did not cede the region, but drove the Germans out."

Then, after telling of a daily increase in the number of refugees entering Germany from Czechoslovakia, and stating the total number now had reached 214,000, Hitler said:

"Whole stretches of land are being depopulated, yet Benes is sitting in Prague and thinks nothing can happen to him, for behind him stand England and France."

"I believe the moment has now come for talking business."

This was the first climax of the address, after the Fuehrer had been speaking 53 minutes. A tumultuous shout rang to the roof of the sportsplatz as Hitler paused. Then he continued:

"My memorandum (given Chamberlain at Godesberg to relay to Prague) is the last and final one. It is nothing but a realization of what Benes has promised."

"All parts that want to join the Reich must join now, immediately."

"I have decided that we shall place this land under German sovereignty."

Saar Status as Basis.

"The final outlining of the border, however, I gladly give to the citizens there. I will use the Saar status as a basis for a plebiscite there."

"I am ready and have been ready for a plebiscite to be conducted in Czechoslovakia."

"But that is where Benes and his friends balked. I was even ready to have a plebiscite carried out by an international control commission."

"I was also ready to have the German-Czechoslovak frontier later agreed upon by a joint German-Czechoslovak commission."

"What is the memorandum but a realization of Czechoslovak promises? And yet Benes says it creates a new situation and wants to shuffle out of his promises."

"Benes understood it this way—that this region will be credited to the German account, but it would not be returned, and instead kept under Czechoslovak rule for further prosecution."

Then, nine minutes after the first, came the second climax of the speech:

"But he must cede this region to us by October 1."

Cheers Resound.

For a full minute there was a deafening din of cheers.

"I am grateful," continued Hitler, "to Mr. Chamberlain for all his efforts. I assured him the German people want nothing but peace, but that there were limits beyond which we cannot go."

"I assured him that when the Czechoslovaks had peacefully settled their difficulties with their other nationalities, Czechoslovakia no longer interested me."

Now Hitler, nearing the close, spoke fast, in high-pitched tones, and was interrupted with frequent clamorous cheers.

"I offered Benes the legalization of what he agreed to do. Does he want war or peace?"

"The Sudeten Germans will now take the liberty denied them for 20 years. Germans are a different people from what they were in 1918."

"We are cured of the democracy of those days."

"In this hour, the whole German people will unite behind me. . . . I ask you to rally behind me, man for man, frau for frau. If our will is stronger than deprivation and danger, we will succeed."

"We are determined, may Mr. Benes know it!"

It was 9:31 p. m., and the Reichsfuehrer was finished. The shouting of his audience was deafening. For five minutes they cheered and sang the chorus:

"We Follow!"

NAZIS UNPREPARED, ASSERTS HISTORIAN

Britain's Sea and Air Power Held Trump Card in War.

val reserve ships, operating from her far-flung bases, will be on a widespread hunt for any ship flying the Nazi flag.

Fully Prepared.

For this, Britain, however unprepared in other respects, is as fully prepared as Hitler for an army parade in Berlin or the march on Czechoslovakia. It is as much taken for granted by the British navy as the regular going and coming of the mails or the response of the London fire department to a fire alarm in peace.

Since the war, the German merchant marine, starting practically from scratch, has been rebuilt, until now it amounts to approximately 2,300 ships totaling more than 4,000,000 tons. All except those in the Baltic trade will be off the seas, not one earning a mark.

These German stations outside the danger zone to form convoys for the guardian destroyers. The submarine is no new, as yet untied, element, as it was in 1914. There is no reason to conclude that it has more offensive power than in the World War, or that depth charges are less effective.

British Air Force.

Hitler's air chiefs may also speak a warning to him. The British air force is larger than the German, and is regarded as being as good, plane to plane, as the German, Germany's air force must be largely occupied against Czechoslovakia.

Although the French army did not leave its fortified line, the French air force, equal in strength to the German, would not be idle, and surely French air dromes would be at the service of the British. They are as near to Berlin as the German are to Paris.

And they are close to the great Krupp arms plant, to the great German industrial plants on the Rhine and to their vital railroad communications. If air raids are in the game, two can play it.

Britain, content with what she has, may not want to go through another ordeal, but we see how she could, and how Hitler, making the most of every talking point, will be wise not to force war with Britain.

Russia should come in, with her immense army and air force, and the British navy has to deal with Mussolini in the Mediterranean, that is another question as horror spreads over the map of Europe. In land warfare, Russia would be the decisive potentiality.

Would Lose Ships.

Germany has made much of the secrecy of her supposedly new and powerful modern submarines. So far as is known, she may have 50 fit for service at the most. Again, she would lose them against British merchant shipping in an effort to starve out the island enemy. Again, we should have ships torpedoed and crews and passengers left to their fate in open boats.

But the British navy has fully visualized this danger out of past experience. Britain has gathered tachments of the German army from Wegscheid, Bavaria, departed for the frontier zone. They were quartered in peasant homes in the Sesselberg district, and telephone connections were established connecting the military command with all frontier points.

Isolated Incidents.

Along the seething Czechoslovak border isolated incidents, involving Sudeten German refugees, continued to be reported.

From towns such as Zinnwald and Weipert came accounts through DNB, German official news agency, of mass arrests of Sudeten Germans by Czechoslovak military authorities and of shooting frays between Czechoslovak border guards and refugees.

DNB reported from Trautenu that bridges were being blown up in Czechoslovak border territory. Almost all highway and railway bridges were reported destroyed in the districts of Braunau and Trautenu as far as Reichenberg and Gablonz.

Certain industries, such as those dealing in furniture and office equipment and tenting and make commodities, were asked to make the first deliveries envisaged under mobilization.

Months ago these firms were asked to prepare provisionally for furnishing certain things in the event of mobilization. Orders were placed on the stagger system.

The first set of orders was to be filled whenever the first communication to that effect was received from the War Department. That communication arrived today.

46,000,000 Soldiers Are Ready For Eventualities in Europe

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(P)—Nearly 46,000,000 trained soldiers stood ready for eventualities in Europe tonight.

Competent military authorities made the following estimates of the military forces of nations, aligned on the two sides of the German-Czechoslovak crisis:

Nation—	Standing Army	Reserves	Total
Czechoslovakia	190,000	1,500,000	1,690,000
Soviet Russia	1,250,000	11,110,000	12,360,000
British Empire	925,000	9,000,000	9,925,000
France	630,000	5,245,000	5,875,000
Rumania	150,000	1,610,000	1,760,000

ITALY SEES DRIVE TO BLAME GERMANY

Gayda Charges Maneuvers To Put Hitler in Light of An Aggressor.

ROME, Sept. 26.—(P)—Virginio Gayda, leading spokesman of the Fascist press, charged tonight that the supporters of Czechoslovakia were maneuvering to brand Germany the aggressor in possible war.

His charge followed by a few hours advice from Premier Mussolini, offered in Verona to France and Great Britain, to save Europe from war by turning their backs on Czechoslovakia.

Italy, said Il Duce, wanted a "new Europe" to replace the "dying" one constructed in the Versailles treaty at the end of the World War.

Italians listened spellbound to today's speech by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler. Almost as though it were by their own Duce.

Small crowds gathered around public radios and newspaper bulletin boards awaiting the translation. There was no official comment until the late hour.

Gayda outlined what he described as the steps by which Germany was being put in the light of an aggressor.

This "maneuver," he said, began with the refusal by the government at Prague to accept Reichsfuehrer Hitler's last offer for ending the Czechoslovak-German crisis.

He asserted the refusal "put in motion the German action announced in Herr Hitler's memorandum, which envisaged direct occupation of Sudeten territory by German armed forces if it is not evacuated by October 1."

"This German march," Gayda continued, "would be defined as aggression. And this aggression would be supposed to provoke a reaction bringing into play military alliances."

There were no signs visible today of Italy taking any emergency military precautions. However, well-informed sources suggested there might be a call to the colors at any hour.

Mussolini indicated he saw no reason for resistance to Hitler's demands.

"It is useless for diplomats to try to save Versailles," shouted Il Duce. "It's fate will be decided this week."

to begin using the right side of the road, as in Germany, instead of the left, as is Czechoslovakia's custom.

What are we to think of a man who will permit his wife to follow all the bills even down to buying his clothes? Oh I have plenty of love making but no cash from him. I have been twice before married and I understand his second wife left him because she had to keep him up. He works but says business is so bad he can't make any thing. Then why in two years has he not got any other sort of employment? If he really loved me wouldn't he prove it with support? We have a comfortable home, ample clothes and all at my expense. We haven't the one thing that I want, a baby. I want a baby—a baby—and we cannot have one. I want a baby when we are both dependent on what I earn. When I try to explain my position he pretends not to understand and doesn't get over it until I suggest that he should get a pet dog. He is perfectly happy and contented? Will he ever change? Is there no way to awaken his pride and ambition?

Answer:

Friend, there's nothing but bad news; only one explanation to make of your husband's behavior. He's a sorry citizen (there are lots of them) willing for women to have the ballot and the business office, wear the pants and bring home the bacon while he makes a pretense of work and pays for his wife with love and kisses. No doubt he has a good disposition when he has no grand, well dressed and comfortably housed and not so sweet when his right to these blessings is questioned by the wife who provides them.

"Why can't you help me instead of always fooling around?" shouts irritated Director Busby Berkeley on the "They Made Me a Criminal" sound stage. . . . Bobby Jordan continues making love to Gloria Dickson (her husband, Perci Westmore, watches with a grin.) Le Georcy continues throwing pellets of bread at Bernard Punsey. Huntz Hall giggles uproariously at a witticism of Billy Ha-top's. Wild Georcy squirts water at Billy Hall. And the "Dead End" kids howl with mirth.

"I'd laugh, too—if I thought that was funny," says Mr. Berkeley, very sarcastic-like. The lads are

Five-Acre Flower Show in Glasgow Wins Approval of Atlanta Matrons

By Sally Forth.

LAST week might appropriately be termed home-coming week, judging from the scores of prominent Atlantans who returned from foreign shores. And a very timely return it was, too, if you believe in the forecast of ominous events being broadcast hourly from Europe's capitals.

Returning the middle of the week were Mr. and Mrs. Strother Fleming, their son, Strother Jr., and Mrs. Hugh Scott, and arriving in the city during the week end were Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Daniel, Mrs. John W. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Robinson, Mrs. Robert G. Alston and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Alston.

Mr. and Mrs. Maddox and Mr. and Mrs. Thornton, who are congenial traveling companions, chose to tour the British Isles by motor on this, their most recent trip. They experienced a varied assortment of thrills, but the "blue ribbon" of approval from the feminine half of the foursome went to the flower show they visited in Glasgow, Scotland. Both Mrs. Maddox and Mrs. Thornton are enthusiastic members of the Peachtree Garden Club, with horticulture heading the list of their cultural interests, so naturally an exhibition of 4,000 entries covering five acres in a color symphony of floral perfection stands out among the unforgettable sights.

Their husbands, however, are telling thrilling "fish stories" about fishing in the beautiful lakes of Killarney.

At the historic Abbey theater, the quartet attended "The Plough and the Stars." They were quite intrigued by the quaint architecture of the building, and by the fact that only the works of Irish playwrights are presented there!

At Glasgow, they viewed the beautiful trans-Atlantic liner, Queen Elizabeth, which is the sister ship of the Queen Mary. They then motored to Edinburgh, where they joined the Tom Daniels and the James D. Robinsons.

Proving the statement, "the more, the merrier," the group motored through Scotland and to London, where they had a particularly exciting time. Mrs. Maddox reports that the war situation in London is "extremely tense," and that permeated by the cries of "Extra! Extra!"

A fellow passenger on the homeward voyage on the Queen Mary was Barney Baruch, the retired philanthropist, who was touring the world during the World War, the immediate cause of Mr. Baruch's return to the States was a conference with President Roosevelt.

Young Strother Fleming's participation in shipboard ping-pong tournaments brought to light his skill at the game, for he won the prize twice! First on the boat going over, and again on the return voyage.

According to Mrs. Fleming, the most enjoyable part of her vacation was a motor trip through Devon, Cornwall, Exeter and Salisbury, where she was thrilled by the beautiful scenery.

ACCOMPANIED by her young daughters, Marion and Valerie, Countess Bernard de Sieyes sailed last Saturday aboard the steamer Western Prince from Buenos Aires. Upon arrival in New York the trio will come directly to Atlanta to spend several months with Countess de Sieyes' mother, Mrs. Harry L. Stearns, and her sister, Mrs. Edgar Upton. The countess, as you know, is the former Alice Stearns of this city, and since her marriage to Count de Sieyes she has lived in several foreign countries, but returns annually for a visit to her family here.

For the past two years the de Sieyes family has resided in Buenos Aires, where they have many friends among the French and English colonies and where they have found life gay and interesting.

Count de Sieyes plans to join his family here for the Christmas holidays and will receive the same cordial welcome from his Atlanta friends that will be accorded his family upon their arrival the middle of next month.

WHEN Marion Bell becomes Mrs. Nat Harrison Jr. on October 24, the day will bear double significance. It will mark not only the wedding date of this popular young couple, but also the 26th wedding anniversary of Marion's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Bell.

Mrs. Bell is the former Miss

NEW APPLICATION FOR BUILDING FILED

Fulton county commissioners yesterday unanimously agreed to co-operate with East Point's $50,000 bond election Wednesday and voted to permit East Point citizens employed by the county enough time off to cast their ballots.

Federal Funds for Tuberculosis Sanitarium Are Also Sought.

Revised applications for federal aid in constructing a county office building and a new tuberculosis sanitarium at a total cost of $2,232,092 were filed yesterday in the regional office of the PWA by the Fulton county commissioners.

Submitted originally in July, the applications requested PWA grants of 45 per cent and loans of the remainder. Yesterday's applications asked only for 45 per cent grants and stated that the rest of the cost would be met by county funds if the $2,500,000 county bond issue is approved by the electorate November 2.

Costing $1,414,468, the office building will be erected on county-owned land in the rear of the courthouse, and will face Hunter street and Central avenue. The structure will be nine stories high, fireproof, and is intended to house nearly all county departments not connected with the courts. It will be built of Georgia granite. A $636,468 federal grant was requested.

The proposed hospital will be constructed on 300 acres of county land near Adamsville, and will cost an estimated $817,624. PWA was asked to grant $367,924. The plans submitted call for a building for white patients, housing 300 beds, and a building capable of caring for 200 colored patients. Complete dental and medical clinics were also proposed.

The regional office also received an application from Menlo, Ga., for a $32,727 waterworks system. A grant of $14,727 and a loan of $18,000 were asked to finance the project. Rebecca Consolidated School District in Turner county filed application for a $5,142 federal loan for construction of a $10,598 school building.

STORM DEATH TOLL MAY REACH 1,000

Hopkins Promises To Speed Aid to Sufferers.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—(P)—Assessing New England's hurricane death toll "approaches 1,000," Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, tonight brought assurance to the stricken area that the government would do all in its power to speed recovery.

Hopkins, in a radio talk, said the WPA was cutting "red tape for action." He spoke after checking New England's needs with Governors and officials of the afflicted states and pledging unlimited WPA funds.

Meanwhile, the list of identified dead rose to 478, with the discovery of more bodies in Connecticut. WPA workers in every section of the area, ravaged by the wind last Wednesday, continued their search for bodies in the kindling which had been cottages and homes.

Burglar With Thirst, Robs Liquor Store

Some person with an inordinate thirst and limited patience threw a meter-top through a plate glass window of the Chilcote Liquor Store, at 280 Edgewood avenue, sometime Sunday night and made off with four quarts of whisky valued at about $7.

Jerry Brown, who occupies a room in the rear of the building occupied by the liquor store, told police that sometime during the night he was awakened by the sound of crashing glass, and, investigating, discovered the robbery.

WOUNDS ARE FATAL TO TWO GEORGIANS

Leroy Cremin Is Found Dead and C. D. Rhodes Dies From Slashing.

A Decatur insurance auditor was dead of a bullet wound late yesterday afternoon on his farm near Lithonia, while an Atlanta carpenter died last night in Grady hospital of injuries police said he inflicted upon himself Saturday night.

The auditor was Leroy F. Cremin, 46, of 119 Park place, Decatur. Found beside him was a .22-caliber rifle. The body lay near the old Salem church off Covington road. A bullet in the left chest had caused death.

The carpenter, Charles D. Rhodes, 53, of 3047 West College avenue, N. E., slashed his throat Saturday night at his home with a paring knife, police reports stated. He had failed to respond to numerous blood transfusions.

Mr. Cremin's body was discovered, according to DeKalb county policemen, by his wife and daughter, Miss Dorothy Cremin. They are the only survivors.

Mrs. Cremin told police her husband had been in ill health for several months. He came to Decatur from Charleston, S. C., about four years ago and acted as auditor for several small insurance companies. He was a communicant of the Catholic church.

Members of Mr. Rhodes family survive. He had been in ill health for almost a year and that only a week before the fatal attempt he had cut himself with a razor at his home but had been dismissed from Grady hospital after treatment.

Surviving Mr. Rhodes are the wife; four sons, Thornton, Hoke, Billy and Charles D. Rhodes Jr.; three daughters, Miss Mamie Rhodes, Mrs. H. L. Sammons and Mrs. F. J. Lucas, all of Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. Mattie Phelps, of Augusta, Ga.

Funeral services for Mr. Cremin will be announced by Sam R. Greenberg & Company, while services for Mr. Rhodes will be announced by A. S. Turner & Sons.

Crackers Beat Vols, 8 to 3; Play Beaumont Here Wednesday

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 26.—Rear Admiral Ray Morrison, who guides the destinies of the good ship Commodore, is alarmed.

What looked like a nice soft spot on the schedule has now assumed alarming proportions of being, perhaps, the toughest game Vandy will be called upon to play all year.

I mean Vandy's October date with Ole Miss here. Rear Admiral Ray insists, anyway, that there has been too much beating of the drums in the Commodore's behalf. He contends that any team forced to use a back at center and that has to shift the material in devious other ways to fit needs does not deserve first-flight rating.

The Commodores received a blow in the opener at St. Louis when Ray Andrus was badly injured a minute and a half before the game ended.

Andrus, one of the key backs, may not play again all season. His knee injury shows no breaks but several torn cartilages.

The results of Saturday were greeted by Morrison with conflicting emotions. Vandy beat L. S. U. on a hidden ball trick last year, and the Tigers were mad, anyway.

The loss to Ole Miss makes them doubly mad and Morrison fears the Tigers will be in a ferocious frame of mind by the time the Commodore game comes around.

Then, of course, Vandy has Alabama to play, not to mention Tennessee. It looks like an interesting year for Rear Admiral Ray. There won't be many dull Saturdays.

IT'S MISTER MEHRE NOW.

Memphis operatives report that little Oxford, Miss., where Ole Miss is located, never has known such joy as the Rebels' victory over L. S. U. brought about.

It's Mister Mehre now. Harry and the Governor of the state enjoy equal importance in the people's mind.

Mehre took the remnants of a good team of last year, plus sophomores, and moulded a giant killer in a very short time. He had the Rebels for spring training and the short weeks leading up to the Old Lou game.

His debut against Old Lou was described as a baptism of fire, and it was. But Mehre came through without so much as getting a slight singe.

The schedule is so arranged that on successive Saturdays Ole Miss will play rest games leading up to Vanderbilt.

This schedule was made before Mehre took over and obviously was arranged to allow Ole Miss to recover from a terrific shock before getting another.

But that's all changed now, and it is much in Mister Mehre's favor. All foes of Ole Miss have been shocked into the realization that a monster has crept into the conference unheralded and unsuspected.

It was one of the best jobs of building up a team without anyone suspecting what was going on that the conference has known in many years.

And yet, it goes hand in hand with the Mehre talents. Yale appreciates how L. S. U. must feel. So does Fordham and other schools.

NOW THAT ATLANTA'S IN.

Now that the Crackers have completed their second conquest in the Shaughnessy playoffs and have climaxed a great Southern league season, the boys will move back home to meet Beaumont's Exporters in the opening game of the Dixie series Wednesday night at Ponce de Leon park.

In winning both the pennant and the two extra series required for the first place club to meet the Texas league winner, the Crackers established themselves as one of the most astonishing clubs in Southern league history.

They started out at the beginning of the season on the short end of the betting odds and also the short end of the fans' expectations.

Few conceded the Crackers of 1938 more than a possible spot in the playoffs. Another pennant was out of the question.

Which is where the smartness of President Earl Mann and the ability of Manager Paul Richards come in.

Mann selected Richards as the successor of Eddie Moore and Richards—his record speaks for itself—certainly sustained Mann's confidence in him.

And now that the Crackers have won another important series—incidentally, they have never failed in a crucial spot all season—this writer would like to go on record as predicting that the Richards' Rifles will bring Atlanta the first Dixie series championship.

The Crackers of other years always have fired and fallen back, but only the foolhardy would sell this team short.

The Crackers and Exporters will play Wednesday and Thursday nights in Atlanta. Friday is an off day. The series will be resumed Saturday, Sunday and Monday in Beaumont. And if the other two games are necessary, the teams will return to Atlanta for games on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

THE FIRST CHANCE.

For the first time since the Shaughnessy play-offs have been inaugurated in the Texas and Southern leagues, the pennant-winning teams will meet.

Beaumont finished first in the Texas and then won both play-offs. Atlanta, winning the pennant, has just annexed final play-off.

In other years, the pennant winner in one of the leagues

English Champions

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)

Semi-pro baseball champions of the United States and England will play an annual international series, beginning June 15, 1939. It was announced today by Ray Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Congress, and Alfred T. Grogan, representative of the English National Baseball Association.

Buford, Ga., 1938 national champs, will represent United States in the first series, a seven-game affair, to be played in London, Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, Hull and Halifax. The winners of the 1939 championship, to be decided at Wichita next August, will be this country's representative in the second series, also to be played in England.

The 1939 National Semi-Pro Congress, worth $10,000 and a trip to England, has been tentatively set for August 11-25 at Wichita, Dumont said.

BOLLING IS STAR, GETS FIVE HITS; BECKMAN WINS

Win Is Bill's 23d; First Game Slated at Night.

By JACK TROY.

SULPHUR DELL, NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 26.—Behind the brilliant pitching of Bill Beckman, who won his 23d game of the year, the Crackers provided a brilliant climax to a great season tonight by winning the deciding game of the Shaughnessy play-off from the Vain Vols, 8 to 3.

Beckman's nine-hit pitching and timely hitting nipped the Vols, who staged only one rally and enjoyed the lead for a brief period.

Jack Bolling, the jack rabbit first baseman who led the 13-hit attack on Bill Crouch and Woody Johnson, fired the initial shot—a NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Bill Beckman pitched the last five innings of tonight's game with a bad blister on the index finger of his pitching hand. "I forgot about that. And I thought, too, that if I hadn't won another ball game all season winning that one would have made it a good year," Beckman said.

homer over the screen in third inning. Emil Mallico also hit a homer in the eighth with Bolling on in base. Bolling got five straight hits. Out to end the series, the Crackers played jam-up ball afield and, as said, hit timely behind Beckman's very effective pitching.

EARLY LEAD.

After the Vols erased an early Cracker lead with a three-run rally in the fourth, the Crackers came right back in the fifth to capture the lead again and never were threatened thereafter.

So it's Beaumont and Atlanta Wednesday night at Ponce de Leon park. Due to the fact that the Shaughnessy play-off was extended in the Southern, the Exporters agreed to come on to Atlanta for the opening two games.

Beaumont had the choice of opening games. A second game will be played Thursday night. Friday is an off day and three games will be played in Beaumont Saturday, Sunday and Monday. If two more games are needed, they'll be played in Atlanta Wednesday and Thursday.

The Nashville Vols, who staged a whirlwind finish in the regular season and beat New Orleans in the initial play-off, salvaged only one game in the Cracker series. They got all their hits and most of their runs in the fourth game, preventing the Crackers from making a clean sweep.

SUNKEL TO PITCH.

Manager Paul Richards very likely will pitch Tom Sunkel in the Dixie series opener Wednesday night. Either Dizzy Trout or Schoolboy Rowe will open for Beaumont, the Detroit Tigers' farm in the Texas league.

By the way, it is the first time the pennant winners of both leagues have met since the Shaughnessy play-off system has been in vogue, and a very colorful series is in prospect.

NO MISTAKE.

The Crackers tonight proved to all and sundry that their winning of the pennant was no mistake. When a club can finish first by five and one-half games and then trade through two play-offs successfully against tough opposition, it merits the stamp of greatness.

Paul Richards has done a great job in his first year but is not willing to rest on any laurels. The Crackers now are bent on bringing Atlanta her first Dixie Series championship. It isn't a good bet that they won't.

Great defensive ball, with double plays on both sides, featured the first two scoreless innings. Then, in the third, after one man had gone down, Bolling fired a home run over the right-field screen to give the Crackers the lead.

The Crackers scored again in the fourth. Hill doubled off the screen. Lipscomb sacrificed. Mauldin walked. Richards hit a line single to center, scoring Hill. Oetting fled to left and Beckman struck out.

The Vols came back with a three-run rally in take the lead in their half. Lee walked and Haas singled past second. Chatham booted Coscarart's grounder, with Lee scoring. Blaemire singled to right. Haas scored. Blaemire went out in the chase, Mallico to Bolling to Chatham. Brown singled, sending Coscarart across.

LOAD BASES.

The Crackers loaded the bases with one away in the fifth. Bolling led off with his third straight hit. Mallico walked. Chatham sacrificed. The strategy called for walking Hill to get to Lipscomb. Lipscomb crossed them up by singling to left, scoring Bolling and Mallico and giving the lead back to the Crackers.

With two away in the sixth, Bolling got his fourth hit and scored all the way from first when Mallico doubled up the bank and Chapman fumbled the ball. Chatham singled to right, scoring Mallico, and went out trying to take second. Chapman to Brown. Mallico's homer in the eighth, with Jack Bolling on base and two men out, was a sort of happy climax. Incidentally, when Bolling bounced his hit over Woody Johnson's head, it was his fifth straight of the game. Johnson went in to pitch for the Vols in the seventh, Crouch having retired for a pitch hitter.

TARZAN AND THE FORBIDDEN CITY No. 16

As Hien left in pursuit of Atan Thome and the casket of the Father of Diamonds, the water rose rapidly in the temple. Most of the Althair-ian warriors were drowned. Tarzan and Lavac turned gladly from the sight and strode to the air chamber.

With Hergul, they went out then into the lake, to the spot where they had left Helen. But she was gone! Tarzan was dismayed. Where in all this submarine wilderness might he look for her?
Those who passed through the waters of Lake
Horus left no trail.

While Tarzan searched hopelessly for Helen, moved, Frederick Gregory tried out "Helen"
in the cavern of their captors. The silence was deathlike. Suddenly the placid surface of the pool was broken, and two helmets emerged, one white, the other dark.

'Stolen' Diamond Is Put on Hook By Young Son

The "burglar" who took a diamond ring valued at $1,450 from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Heiman, 916 Rosedale road, N. E., Sunday night turned out yesterday to be 6-year-old Richard Heiman, who had playfully hung the ring on a curtain hook and had gone to sleep without telling his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Heiman told city detectives Sunday night that someone evidently had slipped into their home and removed the ring from a cedar chest. It contained a stone weighing two carats.

in a setting of platinum with 23 smaller diamonds. While detectives searched the house and surrounding Richard was sleeping soundly. Not until yesterday morning did he think to tell his mother where he had put the ring.

"I don't know whether to switch him or kiss him," Mrs. Heiman commented yesterday afternoon. Mr. Heiman is an executive of an Atlanta provision company.

Although he has been confidant of condemned men in southern prisons for more than a score of years, the Rev. Charles H. Bootle, of Richmond, known as "the prison evangel of the south," never has witnessed an execution and is firm in his purpose to avoid them. In Atlanta last night, en route to New Orleans for further service, the former associate of the famed evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, declared strong opposition to capital punishment.
